'A community bank serves the real individuals of the community' Community banking, town benefit

The State Bank of the Lakes donates $10,000 to fund Brook project

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

In a world of corporate banking with anonymous executives, State Bank of The Lakes is the opposite of that. It is, after all, a community bank.

As a result, it is possible for every taxpayer in the community to realize benefits from its presence in the community. State Bank of The Lakes is not just a benefit for Girl Scout troops, the Central Baptist Children's Home, the College of Lake County, or the William E. Brook Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center.

It is a benefit for each taxpayer, each resident.

"We're the first ones to act when a community has needs," said Randy Miles, owner of State Bank of The Lakes. Two recent investments in Antioch illustrate this. It is typical of what happens in Grayslake, Lindenhurst, and soon, Spring Grove, where a new State Bank of The Lakes is under construction.

On Monday, Oct. 5, just before noon, Randy Miles presented Mayor Marilyn Shineffug a check for $10,000 for the William E. Brook Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center. It was a donation voted by the bank's Board of Directors in response to a request for assistance. Previously, on Monday, Sept. 21, Village of Antioch bond counsel Harold Warren had announced to trustees that two Antioch banks—State Bank of The Lakes and First National Bank Employee Owned—had agreed to participate in the purchase of $5.5 million of bonds to be issued by the village in October. The bonds are to help build the police station on Orchard Street, the new fire substation on Deep Lake Road, and village water and sewer improvements.

In August, employees of State Bank of The Lakes had turned over to the Central Baptist Children's Home, of Lake Villa, a quilt they made for CBCH as a fund-raising raffle item.

The rich variety of community benefit by a community bank can be difficult to capture.

"A community bank is a bank that is owned and operated in the community it serves," said Miles. "A community bank serves the real individuals of the community."

This includes people, merchants, and local businesses. The bank provides financial help and guidance for people on a close and very personal basis. Many large banks do not even try.

Grass Lake School to answer voter questions

Seeking tax extension on November ballot

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Grass Lake School officials will host a meeting Wednesday, Oct. 14 at 7 p.m. to discuss building improvements and the use of a "debt service extension base" to pay for them.

The informational meeting will be held in the Grass Lake School gymnasium.

Voters will be asked, eventually, to approve or reject this method to raise money for building improvements on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Grass Lake School has a "severe lack of space at the school for such basics such as a cafeteria and classrooms," according to a letter sent to school parents Monday, Oct. 5.

The situation could be improved for between $12 and $20 a year, according to school officials.

The school needs a cafeteria and multi-purpose room, according to school officials. At the present time, the gymnasium area is used for a lunchroom. New space could be provided for art, band, music, scouts, and extra-curricular activities.

Additional classrooms would allow for a reduction in class size. This would improve the quality of education.

Athletic Big Plays yield ACHS big donations

Raymond Chevrolet pitches to high school when athletes score

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Home game touchdowns, 3-point baskets, wrestling falls, and homeruns will yield a $25 donation for each from Antioch's Raymond Chevrolet and Oldsmobile, Inc. automobile dealership during the 1998-1999 sports season.

Big plays could accumulate into thousands of dollars by the time it ends at Antioch Community High School.

"The first week they did it, we scored four touchdowns," said Jim Kafer, assistant principal and athletic director.

The Big Play program involves all varsity-level home events, according to Mark Scarpelli of Raymond Chevrolet and Oldsmobile. Both male and female athletes will be helping the school win on the athletic field and for the department's budget.

Scarpelli is braced for winning seasons. "The sky's the limit," he said. "We hope it to be $5,000."

However well the athletes perform on the field, be it a few hundred dollars or several thousand, that will be the amount written on the check.

Antioch Community High School conducts award ceremonies for each of its sports and at that time, the donation will be presented to the high school.

customer service," Miles said.

Another thing they will not match is the interest rate that State Bank of The Lakes will accept for the village's bonds.

The village will pay 4.35 percent interest on the bonds as a steady rate. Warren told village trustees that interest rate and structure is very favorable to the community.

When it was announced at the council meeting that the village bonds would be bought locally, Trustee Wayne Foresta said, "This was a good surprise."

"I'm delighted we can do this locally," said Trustee Mabel Lou Weber.

Bond Counsel Warren told village trustees in September that the savings created for the village by local-bank purchase of bonds are numerous. The costs for bond insurance and the costs for printing the paper work of a bond issue are some of the typical expenses that would be borne by the village and its taxpayers were out-of-town banks involved.

The origins of the cost savings on a bond issue are rooted in the local knowledge that State Bank of The Lakes has of Antioch. "We know the village, we know the community, we know the people," said Miles. The bank can make judgments based on their knowledge of the village and its people. It does not require insurance, for example, to secure an evident AAA-rating. Bank directors can look out their window and see a community with a AAA-rating.

A few months ago, the Village of Antioch approached the bank to request help for the downtown area wetland sanctuary and entertainment center project.

Community Development Director Claude LeMere said that the wetland project fundraising committee had directed him to make several such presentations during the past few months. Out of that work had come financial commitments from service clubs and organizations to help build the project. In addition, anonymous donors also came forward with substantial personal gifts of $5,000 and $10,000.

Earlier this week, Mayor Marilyn Shinesflug accepted the donation from Randy Miles on behalf of the community. "This is a very special event," she said of the large contribution.

"It will help substantially in meeting our goals," Shinesflug said later about the donation. "We're extremely pleased and grateful."

State Bank of The Lakes promotes a wide ranging style of community service that goes beyond these examples of financial aid. Miles is personally involved with groups that make Antioch a special place. At a Ducks Unlimited fundraiser at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on North Avenue, he both contributes live auction items and he bids on other offerings. The same is true at the Antioch Rotary Club where he has been a member for 16 years.

The technology is as up-to-date as their web site banking services (at www.thisisyourbank.com) where customers can bank on-line.

"We worked hard to provide it," Miles said. "The age of computers is here."

He said that his community bank prides itself at being at the peak of technology and investing in the community.

Amanda dancing way to Australia

High School dance Oct. 9 to raise funds for softball player's trip

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Managing Editor

Antioch High School students just may be dancing a classmate's way to Australia.

A benefit dance, Friday, Oct. 9 will aid softball player Amanda Pollitt's efforts to earn money to fund the trip down under to compete with the Field of Champions—USA traveling softball team in a series of friendship games.

The Antioch High freshman is inviting students to attend the dance Friday, Oct. 9 in the high school commons to raise funds to cover the cost of the November trip. The dance will be held from 8-10 p.m. Admission is $5.

The dance will feature Hype Productions providing music and a light show along with several different prizes, which have been donated by area merchants.

"We are really excited about the dance," said Jessica Pollitt, Amanda's mother.

Hype Productions, owned and operated by Trish Kuligowski of Chicago Heights, is donating their services, because Kuligowski knows what it is like to be chosen to participate in International athletic competitions.

The 24-year-old entertainer played on a U.S. team dubbed "The Spirit of Chicago," in 1992 which toured Europe and participated in the Junior Olympics.

"She's a great girl and I understand first-hand how great it is to be able to participate in an event like this," Kuligowski said.

The entertainer met Amanda a couple of years ago, because her cousin, Paula Swanson, has done baby-sitting for the Pollitt family and lives in their Antioch neighborhood.

"I'm really close to Paula, and she told me of Amanda's enthusiasm for softball a couple of years ago. Since that time, we had talked often about the game. When she was selected for the team, she asked me how I went about fundraising for my trip and I offered my services to help her," Kuligowski said. "When people hear of this tremendous opportunity, they want to help kids get there."

Kuligowski promises a night of music, lighting, funky costumes and great staging to entertain participants at the dance.

"We do a lot of weddings, conventions and special events, but rarely do things on the high school level," Kuligowski said. "I have a lot of special things planned I think the students will enjoy. It's going to be a lot of fun."

Among the businesses who have donated items for prizes at the dance are Burger King and the local band, Source, which has donated several compact discs for prizes.

There will be dance contest and other events in which the students will win the prizes.

"She is nearly half-way to her goal and we were able to send in the first installment," Jessica Pollitt said. "So many people in the neighborhood have donated money to help her."

The Australia trip will cost the Pollitts, $3,150.

At 14, Amanda is the youngest player on the team. Amanda and the team will leave for Victoria, Australia, Nov. 18 and return Nov. 30.

"She had her first practice last week and they played two games in Milwaukee. She did just great," her mom said. "She came home and said, 'I got really dirty, today' that's a good thing."

A trust fund has been established at the First National Bank Employee Owned to help Amanda fund her trip. Contributions may be sent to: Amanda Pollitt Trust Fund, Box 248, Antioch, Ill. 60002.

GRASS LAKE: School plans informational meeting

Parents are being asked to inform themselves about the proposed technique, referred to as a tax extension base, in order to have it approved in the referendum.

Superintendent Jim Beveridge and Board Members Randy Mathias and Kim Rutter have written to school parents to explain the concept.

"The issue on the Nov. 3 ballot will be called a Debt Service Extension Base. It will allow the school to sell bonds to finance building improvements up to a maximum level each year.

"A Tax Extension Base gives the school a 'line of credit' that can be used toward needed building improvements, not to exceed $95,000 per year."

The explanatory letter said, "The repayment of these bonds will be divided among the property taxes of the entire district. The additional tax would be $12 to $20 per year—$1 to $2 per month."

The letter states: "As property taxes continue to rise through the years, the percentage owed by each household will go down."

The letter states that this ballot proposal differs from the usual referendum. For example, the small amount added to tax bills repays a constant amount of school debt.

BIG PLAYS: Dealer scores community," said Mark Scarpelli, "and this is one of the ways we can do it."

Kafer said, "We've been very appreciative of the support Raymond Chevrolet-Oldsmobile has given us, and this is just another aspect."

Kafer said that Raymond Chevrolet-Oldsmobile has supported the school in other areas as well. "They do a lot with our driver's education program," he said.

The dealership also helps the booster clubs. There have been other activities in the past with the high school.

Landmark Point PUD fails plan, zoning review

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Combined Plan

Commission and Zoning Board voted to recommend to the village board denial of the Landmark Pointe annexation and PUD agreement.

The board voted to deny a petition to annex 26-acres on the east shore of Antioch Lake as an R-1 Planned Unit Development at its last meeting.

The recommendation to deny the petition will be considered by the Village Board of Trustees on Monday, Nov. 2 at the 7:30 p.m. board meeting.

The petition by Landmark Homes, Inc. proposed a 43 lot subdivision of homes with an average size lot of 17,110 square feet.

Antioch Lake property owners formed the Alliance for Sensible Development—ASD. The alliance opposed the PUD proposed for the densely wooded hillside area. The proposed development is surrounded by Deer Ridge, Falcon Hills Estates, and Mystic Cove single family subdivisions.

On Sept. 24, plan and zoning commission members received additional information they had requested from Mike Doran, President of Landmark Homes. Village planning and engineering staff provided additional evaluations. Testimony from the audience was also taken.

Landmark Homes presented a tree protection plan, traffic plan revisions, soil erosion control plans, and other information requested at a previous portion of the hearing. Site density was shown to be less than Mystic Cove and Falcon Hills. Park size and conservancy areas were increased. Parking space was reduced.

"We are in agreement and are willing to change our petition in line with staff recommendations," said Doran.

"We're trying to minimize disturbance to land and trees," said Project Engineer Don Fielding. He demonstrated how site design was intended to fit homes into the site, given its topography and their desire to preserve trees.

Later in the meeting, Doran said that Landmark Pointe would attempt to achieve the same look for this development as developer Perry Bigelow had achieved with his Tree House in the Woods Development in Round Lake Beach.

"It's our goal to achieve as close a look as that as possible," he said.

Village Planning Director Robert E. Silhan provided the village staff evaluation of the proposed PUD. "I have recommended a positive action with conditions," he told commissioners.

Silhan's view was based on the fact that the land has not been purchased as open space. To protect the lake and for the sake of Antioch, he said that the proposed PUD on sewer and water, not septic and wells, offered more protection for the village. However, Silhan and Village Engineer John Boldt identified more than two dozen additional concerns and recommendations they wanted to see in an adopted PUD agreement with the developer.

Alliance for Sensible Development presented a petition with 92 signatures opposing Landmark Pointe. Plan and Zoning Commissioners counted 53 raised hands in the audience opposed to the development.

"We want to hear your objections, and we do hear them," Chair Barbara Johnson told the audience.

"I really object to Mr. Silhan making a recommendation before he hears the people out," said development opponent Laverne Johnson.

Additional testimony from the audience revealed concerns about several topics.

"Too many homes in too small an area," said Charles Ferry. He described the PUD as a reduction in the quality of life in Antioch and expressed concerns about emergency vehicles, snow plows, and school buses on the narrow roads.

Alliance Attorney Margaret Morrison Borgia raised several issues related to notice and compliance with adopted village plans. Village Attorney Kenneth Clark agreed with Borgia that the plan and zoning board would have to address the issue of developer hardship and practicality related to granting variances.

Other objections by people in the audience included: the failure of siltation fencing as an erosion control measure (allegedly, such as at Mystic Cove), traffic congestion, and expected siltation of Lake Antioch.

Speaking for the alliance, Leonard Mattson said that the homeowners do not oppose building homes in this area, but they did not like abandonment by the village of planning standards.

"Do we have to lunge at every opportunity to make a buck?" he said. "A better plan will appear. Please do not approve this one."

Prior to the vote to recommend denial of the Landmark Homes petition, owner Mike Doran spoke again.

"It's very natural to feel the way you do," he said to the members of the audience. "Our plan is not as terrible and evil as you believe."

"The density we are proposing is not high." He said that it is half the density of the adjacent Mystic Cove development.

Doran said that the variances requested were not meant to put money in his pocket but were intended to preserve the site.

Doran said that his company was creating a unique, hand-crafted plan for the site. "Our plan will preserve the shoreline better than any development around this lake."

There were five votes to recommend denial, one absent, and none opposed.

Developer Michael W. Doran is a Lake County developer of 21 years. During the past decade, he has worked in Gurnee, Grayslake, and Kildeer.

Community residents gathered for a porkchop dinner in the school cafeteria before entering the decorated gymnasium. It was a Rock 'n' Roll Rotary evening with classic cardboard-automobile centerpiece on each black-and-white checkered table cover. The ceiling was covered with pink, white, and black balloons. Walls were covered with posters to announce live auction offerings. There were tables piled with merchandise for silent auction.

Multi-group blood drive at Moose Lodge builds

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Report

Organizers of a community blood drive have taken healthy steps toward their goal to drain 100 pints of blood from the community Saturday, Oct. 17.

"We've gotten over 50 pledges already," said Ray Edwards, general organizer for the multi-organization blood drive.

He said that walk-ins are still welcome and still needed.

"We have two crews there, so there is no waiting," said Edwards.

In addition, other civic groups in the community have indicated an interest to have their members provide blood donations.

Five volunteer groups now are sponsoring a community-wide blood drive in Antioch on Saturday, Oct. 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Blood will be donated at the Antioch Moose Lodge on West Highway 173 in Antioch. The Lodge is on the north side of the road and has a large parking lot.

Blood will be collected by LifeSource.

Appointments may be scheduled at 847-395-2042. However, the blood drive is set to welcome walk-in donors on Saturday morning.

The blood drive is sponsored by the Antioch Junior Woman's Club and the Antioch Lions Club.

Other sponsors include the Antioch Woman's Club, Antioch Moose Lodge #525, and Masonic Lodge #827.

"From the Antioch Woman's Club we have eight volunteers; there are four from the Antioch Junior Woman's Club, and four from the Antioch Masonic Lodge," Edwards said. These volunteers will help set up, manage, and clean-up the donation area.

Donor candidates can be 17 to 80 years of age and must weight 110 pounds or more. Blood pressure screening will be conducted as well as pulse readings.

"They're given a mini-physical," Edwards said of donors in the screening process.

"They do ask that you eat a good breakfast, but leave the coffee alone," Edwards said. "There are juices and snacks afterwards for free."

Donors should not be pregnant or nursing a baby.

Several years ago, the Moose Lodge conducted a similar drive and was able to obtain 91 pints of blood.

Edwards said that plans for the current blood drive began around Labor Day. Moose members suggested that it be done again. The Antioch Lions Club immediately supported the idea.

YOUR HEADACHE MAY NOT BE ALL IN YOUR HEAD

Headaches are among the most common clinical complaints, yet their causes are so complex and varied that doctors are often baffled about how to prevent or treat headaches.

A number of factors have been cited as probable causes for headaches, including infection, high blood pressure, certain food allergies (particularly to red wine, aged cheeses, and chemicals such as MSG), hypoglycemia, sunlight, and changes in barometric pressure. This approach may isolate an offending substance, but it does not address why a particular individual responds negatively to that substance. In most cases, the recommended treatment usually consists of aspirin for tension-type headaches and stronger medications in the case of migraines.

Chiropractors know that pain killers merely mask the symptom and don't deal with the underlying cause of pain. Headaches often result when the blood supply to the brain is restricted, either by a misaligned vertebrae, spasms in the neck muscles, or neck displacement. We have an excellent track record in treating the cause of headaches.

If maintaining your health and reducing stress is important to you, call Round Lake Beach Chiropractic at 847-740-2800 to make an initial, no obligation consultation with Dr. Scott G. Reiser. Our clinic is located at 314 Rollins Road, Round Lake Beach (Eagle Creek Plaza - corner of Cedar Lake and Rollins Roads.)

Mother nature could turn ugly

Webster defines camping as the activity of living in the outdoors, usually for recreation—my thought would be why not just build a deck and invest in some nifty patio furniture? Though millions of people each year feel compelled to pack up their tents or campers and head off to the great unknown for a week of fighting mosquitoes the size of 747s and cooking out over an open fire, one has to wonder "haven't you heard of Holiday Inn?"

As campers approach their destination, in their Sports Utility Vehicles chocked full of linens, cooking utensils, clothes for every season, first aid kits, coolers with 25 pound bags of ice, food, lawn chairs, bug spray, flashlights, and their own supply of toilet paper, nervous energy emits from their pores as they see the sign leading into the campground showing Smokey the Bear giving a thumbs down to open fires. Now they are left to eating uncooked beans and raw hamburgers, not to mention washing dirty dishes in cold water.

Of course, Mother Nature can also turn to her other sleeve for her latest trick and have it rain for the entire 10 day camping outing. Then they are faced with spending every waking, and sleeping, moment in the confines of about 50 square feet with several small, bored, whining children, one, humorless spouse, and a wet, smelly dog. Boy are we having fun yet.

Oh some campgrounds come complete with casinos, pools, maybe even a restaurant, but for the most part they come better equipped with lake leeches, roaming raccoons, and noisy neighbors. So called quiet hours are rarely observed and Freddy Kruger is just waiting to set up camp right next door.

Of course, it wouldn't be a

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

column on camping if we didn't mention those public facilities for all to share during their personal hygiene routines. Oh sure, some of you are smug enough to have your own bathrooms in your custom motor homes, but who really wants to be able to sit on the toilet, take a shower and have the ability to brush his or her own teeth all at the same time.

Besides motor homes don't qualify as true camping. Being in the great outdoors, communing with nature, feeling the warm sun on your brow, hearing birds chirp, seeing squirrels chase around, swatting mosquitoes, itching poison ivy, securing food in the trunk of your car, pulling off ticks—oh my, who wouldn't want to spend hard earned vacation time partaking of all that fun.

My definition of camping, although varying a little from Webster and leaning more towards an "indoor pool and room-service" perspective, does include the act of living in the outdoors for recreational purposes. It's boarders more on the falling asleep in my lawn chair on the deck while the chicken is cooking on the gas grill kind of description. Okay, so that may be too easy, well then I'll rough it a little and put the beverage of my choice in a leaky styrofoam cooler.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Blessings returned: Pastor's flock includes pets

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

On a sunny Saturday morning, the congregation gathers at the edge of the water, under Linden trees, to worship God.

Most muzzles face the altar. Pastor Vincent Eckholm presents an ecumenical mass at the edge of Timberlake on a carpet of deep-green grass beneath a clear blue sky.

This day is more special, however. It includes a blessing of the pets of the small congregation.

Every Saturday from May through October, Pastor Eckholm brings a travel case filled with his service garments and materials to worship God with residents of Timberlake Park near Routes 45 and 173.

This Saturday, at the end of the communion service, Eckholm moves among the people to bless each dog. He anoints each with water from the aspersorium, a small, bucket-like, container of water.

"It was a mutual blessing," Eckholm later explained. "It was a call that this (relationship) is a gift to be treated with respect."

May God Bless this relationship, he said.

Eckholm said, "And may you realize the obligation you have. This is not an accident. This is a gift of God."

Eckholm knows whereof he speaks. He considers himself blessed to have Erika and Alex in his life, two Golden Retrievers who travel with him in his ministry at St. Ignatius Episcopal Church in Antioch.

"I think pets, especially expressive pets, are a way of God giving us an expression of unconditional love," Eckholm said. Eckholm says he can see this for himself when he is tired, impatient, out of sorts. He gets into his car and Erika is there to help him reclaim his better self.

The worship service itself began nine years ago. At that time, Eckholm was at Timberlake Resort. "I can remember thinking 'wouldn't this be a neat place to have an outdoor Mass,'" he said. The manager agreed to have such a service at the summer lake resort. As a result, Eckholm began a small ministry which now can claim deep roots into the hearts of the people who attend.

"He makes it so warm," John Artinghelli said. "He's always there for you." He describes Eckholm as a chaplain for the park.

"He really cares. He really wants to help you," said James Petersen. "He believes in you."

For the past few years, Timberlake Resort residents also have hosted a fund-raising event to collect a donation to St. Ignatius Episcopal Church for the new church on Deep Lake Road.

Artinghelli said that the Timberlake congregation is appreciative of Eckholm coming there, so they have tried to help raise money for his church.

Timberlake Park management donates pop, ice, and space for the festival. "They even donate posters for advertising the up and coming event," Artinghelli said. Mark Moore is the manager of the park.

"He helps us out in all the set up," Artinghelli said. "Anything we've needed, he's been very cooperative."

The result has been that a few thousand dollars have been raised for the St. Ignatius Episcopal Church building fund.

"It's very unusual to have people spontaneously do this like this," said Eckholm.

Eckholm has conducted pet blessings at St. Ignatius Church. "I did one a few years ago at the parish," he said. He may do another.

He is responsive to the needs of people whose lives, like his, are blessed with the presence of a dog or other pet. For Eckholm, the person, the pet, and the relationship itself are worthy of focus.

The summer services at Timberlake will soon end for the year. People will keep in touch.

"It carries over during the winter months," he said. He looks forward to all of it.

"It's fun," he said. "I really mean that. It's fun."

Firefighters teach Antioch students about fire prevention

Captain Sam Frankson of the Antioch Fire Department answers questions about fire safety for fifth graders at Petty School in Antioch Monday as part of fire prevention week. —Photo by Sandy Bressner

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Firefighters brought fire prevention knowledge into the lives of W. C. Petty School students Monday morning, Oct. 5 during their initial session with fourth and fifth grade students.

Antioch firefighters have been teaching 4,000 students about fire safety in area schools all week.

This year the education theme is "The Great Escape." Children are taught about EDITH, Exit Drills In The Home. It is about the need to organize, practice, and use an escape route from the house when there is a fire.

The Antioch Fire Department First Fire Protection District expects to meet with 4,000 children during fire prevention week. "We're going to see half of the kids in the first two days," said Rich Frankson, a member of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

He said that students are retaining the knowledge about how to behave around fire. "They've been through this three or four years now," he said. "They're becoming more knowledgeable."

Some children are beginning to recognize some of the firefighters now.

Each year there is a theme for Fire Prevention Week. In addition, students are taught other safety rules and practices. For example, children are told not to play with matches or lighters.

"We teach kids that lighters and matches are tools," said Frankson. They are not something with which to play.

Firefighters explain "Stop, Drop, and Roll" if clothing is burning. Running feeds a fire. Stop, Drop, and Roll puts out the fire.

Students are told how 911 works. Most children do not understand that 911 calls lock onto the incoming telephone number. Frank callers may find a firefighter at their door asking about the fire.

If necessary, a firefighter will remain at the home until parents or guardians return so they may inform parents of the improper use of 911 emergency calling. Many children do not understand the serious consequences of using 911.

"We stress: once you are out, you do not go back in for anything," Frankson said.

Participating firefighters in prevention week activities include James Delgarde, Sam Frankson, Chris Lienhardt, Amber Meltzer, Rich Frankson, Lee Shannon, and John Lucas.

Part of the education materials distributed is a coloring book that reinforces the message of The Great Escape. "We've made it a lot more appealing," Frankson said. It now has a color cover that holds young attention spans better.

"The book is more customized to what this year's theme is," he said.

Funding to help fire prevention education comes from the Village of Antioch and the First Fire Protection District. In addition, the Antioch Junior Woman's Club, Antioch Lions Club, Antioch Woman's Club, and other civic groups help with financial donations.

Studies of these efforts suggest that there are fewer fire calls as a result of public education programs.

Secretary of State to offer digital drivers license in Antioch

Driver's license services will be available at Antioch Village on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Services will include written and vision testing, the issuance of driver's licenses and identification cards and the sale of September, October, and November vehicle renewal stickers for passenger license plates. These services will be offered from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at 874 Main St.

The mobile driver services program is part of the implementation of Illinois' new digital driver's license system, which will be available at the Antioch site. For a $5 fee, applicants may exchange their current valid Illinois driver's license for a digital licence. In addition to surrendering their old license, applicants will need to show an additional form of identification containing their signature.

Individuals within one year of the expiration date of their driver's license may go ahead and renew for a $10 fee. Vision and written tests can be administered at the mobile unit; however, individuals requiring a road test will not be able to renew at this site.

"This technology completely changes how driver's license cards are made," Secretary of State, George Ryan said about the new computer-generated license. "The digital license provides increased security and durability, and it also offers new tools for law enforcement to protect us all from fraud and misuse of identification."

Using digital imaging, the Secretary of State's office will be able to electronically capture and store images and signatures. Only the Secretary of State's office and law enforcement can retrieve these images for verifying identity of issuing duplicate licenses.

"This will be a very valuable tool to help us eliminate the type of driver's license fraud that can occur when someone steals your purse or billfold and then tries to use your forms of identification to get a driver's license or identification card in your name with their photo on it," Ryan explained.

Wetland workshop Saturday

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Community residents are invited to participate in an education and field workshop at the downtown Brook wetland sanctuary on Saturday morning.

This will be the first such large community program at the restoration project since Earth Day in 1996.

"I think there's going to be good participation," said Community Development Director Claude LeMere. "It will be very interesting."

Volunteers have been invited to learn about invasive species and to help remove them from the downtown wetland sanctuary area on Saturday, Oct. 10 at 9 a.m.

Dr. John Larson, of Applied Ecological Services, Inc., will conduct the seminar in the William E. Brook Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center. It will be about invasive species with a practical demonstration of wetland improvement techniques in a workshop session. Participants are to meet at the entrance to the wetland area at Orchard and Skidmore streets.

"(Many) years ago there was a large turnout from the community to clean out the wetlands," said Mayor Marilyn Shineflug. "Together they removed old car bodies, tires, refrigerators, stoves, oil tanks, dead wood, trash, and, in typical Antioch fashion, had fun in the process."

During the first wetland sanctuary area clean-up on April 20, 1996, more than 100 volunteers had helped with the clean-up process. Volunteers from schools, churches, community groups, and local government worked together.

Shineflug said that it was a chilly, damp morning then, but boots, gloves, shovels, and rakes kept the restoration process moving.

This Saturday's sessions will continue the work started in 1992.

"The purpose of the (Saturday) workshop is to remove invasive plants and shrubbery," said LeMere.

THE CLIPBOARD

Lee Filas

Filas to round out sports dept.

This isn't the first "hello" column I've written, but it's the first time it's appeared on page 9.

Where to begin. My name is Lee and I am the new sports reporter for Lakeland Newspapers' 11 editions in Lake County.

I have been employed with Lakeland for about 10 months now, a job which I have enjoyed. I have spent my last reporting year in Fox Lake, covering village board meetings, school board meetings and various other board meetings that have been thrust in my direction.

However, over the past two months, I have been looking for a change. I have been contemplating my future with Lakeland.

Since I love Lakeland, the people I work with and the people I have met in the county, I decided that staying at this newspaper was the best avenue for me.

However, like every road on the highway of life, a fork in the road presented itself with the departure of Steve Peterson to Iowa.

Sports has always been my first love (my second love is macaroni and cheese ("It's the cheesiest!")), while politics, as you can imagine, was burning me out something fierce. It was time to move onto to another venture.

I started in the newspaper business 10 years ago, for the Northwest Herald in McHenry County, covering sports. For the last two months, I have been giving sports editor Brendan O'Neill and Peterson help in Fox Lake, covering Grant High School and Johnsbury High School football games.

Steve's position was up for grabs, so I decided to take a left at the fork on the highway and here I am, A sports reporter - just add coffee.

Over the next few months, there are going to be a few subtle changes happening to the sports section in Lakeland. One change is this column.

During the previous weeks, O'Neill has been placing stats and figures in this column. With the addition of me in "Sports", and knowing my love of writing columns, O'Neill decided to give me what I wanted.

I see myself in 10 years as a columnist for Sports Illustrated. (Currently, Rick Reilly holds that position, and I am envious of it. I want to be Rick Reilly). Because of my fantasy, O'Neill and I have been looking for interesting stories, tid-bits and other local sports/human interest stories to put here.

We are looking to write a better "Clipboard" for the readers. Something sports fans can really sink their teeth into, but also a column for people about the people on the "other side" of sports.

We want a column that will show what a sports column really can be.

So, for next week, look to this spot for a "new and improved" Clipboard. A sports column in the truest name of the word.

And, when we're finished, look out Mr. Reilly... we're coming for your job.

Sequoits beats up Warhawks

ACHS trounces Johnsbury 43-14; improves to 4-2

By LEE FILAS
Staff Reporter

It was a rude welcoming for the North Chicago Warhawks (0-6, 0-4) in Antioch on Saturday, as the Sequoits (4-2, 2-2) demolished North Chicago 43-14.

Antioch was led by offensive standout Matt Ingram who ran for 164 yards on 30 carries with one touchdown, while quarterback Don Lackey went 5 of 11 for 89 yards and 1 touchdown.

"Our goal was to control the ball and keep their offense off the field," said Antioch football coach Del Pechauer. "They spread things out a lot and they've got great team speed."

However, that speed was reduced to a minimum as the defense did exactly what the coach wanted them to do, kept them off the field and only allowing the Warhawks into the end zone twice.

"Against North Chicago, our lines look a little better," Pechauer said. "They don't have the size that Stevenson and Warren have up front."

Wide-out Jim Richardson helped out, catching the ball four times for 76 yards and 1 touchdown.

Next week, the Sequoits will move to face conference rival Lake Forest.

"They're pretty good," Pechauer said. "They've got good size and run the option well. They've added a counter to their option which might give us some trouble."

"We've never done well against their option. It's always been hard to defend for us," Pechauer said.

Brett Butler inducted into Lake County Hall of Fame

Brett Butler points to the grace of God for his years in Major League Baseball.

"I made it in through the grace of God," Butler said prior to the Lake County Athletics Hall of Fame induction ceremonies. "Also, I had the drive and enthusiasm to make it through."

Butler, who along with football great Otto Graham, Mundelein High School football standout Rich Boothe and Grant High School basketball standout in Lee Oler, were all inducted into the two-year-old Lake County Hall of Fame Thursday, Oct. 1 at the Midlane Country Club in Wadsworth.

The Hall of Fame ceremony coincided with the 10th Annual Keith Ryan Scholarship Fund and Sports Banquet. Keith Ryan was a former Lake County sportscaster who lost a 15-month fight with cancer.

This year's recipient of the scholarship is Amie Lynn Shak of the College of Lake County.

"It's a nice homecoming for me," said Libertyville High School graduate Butler about his return. "I've had the chance to see some of my old friends, see the old neighborhood and I'll be attending the Libertyville homecoming game on Saturday. It should be a fun time."

Butler received only 32 at-bats his senior year for the Libertyville High Wildcats, but wasn't discouraged. He was a walk-on player at Oklahoma State University, where he eventually became a two-time All-American.

In 1979, he was selected by the Atlanta Braves and made his eventual debut for the parent club in August of 1981.

Eventually, Butler worked his way into the starting line-up, becoming the starting center fielder for the Braves in 1982, before being traded to the Cleveland Indians in 1983.

In 1987, he was signed as a free agent with the San Francisco Giants and played in the World Series in 1989. Butler later signed as a free agent with the Dodgers, then Mets, before being traded back to the Dodgers in 1995.

In 1996, Butler's season was cut short when throat cancer was discovered during a tonsillectomy. The cancer was removed, and Butler returned to the starting line-up in Los Angeles on Sept. 6 of 1996, but was injured five days later with a broken hand.

He retired from baseball after the 1997 season, finishing his career with 16 major league seasons, stealing over 500 bases, driving in over 500 runs and ended with over 2000 career hits.

Butler points to his Sept. 6 game, the day after returning from cancer rehabilitation, as his most treasured experience.

"I remember coming back from cancer on Sept. 6 after everyone told me I wouldn't," Butler said. "Also, in 1989, while with the Giants, I watched Dave Dravecky come back from cancer to pitch again. That was a great experience as well."

Along with Butler, Otto Graham, ex-Cleveland Brown quarterback, was elected into the Hall. Graham, who was named the greatest quarterback ever by Inside Sports, and was named as one of six quarterbacks to have effected the game the most by Sports Illustrated.

Graham has been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame for his numerous accomplishments while a professional from the years of 1946-55. Some of his individual accomplishments include passing more

Lawnmower Man

Antioch man does more than most with his riding mower

By BRENDAN O'NEILL
Sports Editor

Nearly every weekend until the first frost you can see people cutting their grass and trimming their lawns with all types of lawn equipment. There are weed wackers, edgers, trimmers, push mowers, lawn tractors and everything in between. But one Antioch resident gets more from his small horsepower, decade-old riding lawn tractor than most would imagine.

Bill Burow competes with his lawn mower. Bill Burow goes fast on his lawn mower, Bill Burow's lawn mower doesn't even have a blade.

Burow, like a growing number of people across the county and country, races his lawnmower. Recently, he competed in his second STA-BIL Regionals and Nationals in Rockford, and continues to enjoy the competition.

"I first got started when the owner of the repair shop I was working at was competing at the National Championships," said Burow. "That was back in the early '90s, maybe '92."

And that was what sparked Burow to get involved in a fun hobby which is related to his occupation of mechanic for a landscape company.

Burow's mower is not a high-tech, top of the line, tricked-out fancy machine that barely resembles a lawnmower. He competes on a 1987 Sears model 917, painted silver with over 8.5 horsepower and a governor on the engine. He competes in the Prepared BP class, which means there have been some modifications, but nothing too substantial.

"I picked up my machine from a friend of mine who had blown the engine—he ran it without oil," said Burow.

Burow rebuilt the engine for minimal cost, and began racing shortly after. He rides his non-descript mower for the fun of it, and has no real preference for make or model of mower.

The format for the Nationals is a more-or-less oval-shaped track, according to Burow. But many of the other races during the year are of the "road race" variety, including a number of right and left turns and straight-aways on the natural turf surface.

And Burow would like to get better—he did not place in the Nationals—but that takes practice.

"I try to practice when I can—it always helps," said Burow. "If you don't use it, you lose it."

The races are not limited to machines like Burow's, and include very high-performance vehicles.

"There are some good looking vehicles out there. A lot of them have sponsors to help with the cost," said Burow.

Burow has set his sights high, and this year he actually finished both races he competed in, where as last year his machine broke down during the race.

Be on the lookout for future lawnmower racers in your neighborhood. Many will be practicing and fantasizing about racing while trimming down their lawn in preparation for a long winter.

than 23,000 yards, 175 touchdowns, and a lifetime completion rate of 54 percent. Also, during that span Graham led the Cleveland Browns to 10 consecutive league title games, winning seven of them, and a personal record of 105 wins, 17 losses and 4 ties.

Mundelein High School graduate Boothe was also elected for his accomplishments while playing football. He was the Lake County scoring champion two years in a row, seasons in which he was named all-conference, all-county and conference MVP.

As a professional, Boothe played a year for the Denver Broncos before his career was cut short by a knee injury.

Grant graduate Oler became Lake County's all-time leading scorer as a senior member of Grant basketball team, and the record survived 25 years before being broken. Oler is still ranked in the top 5 of all time and currently holds the single-game record of 54 points while leading Grant to District and Regional titles, as well as a Sectional qualifying berth in 1968.

He went on to the University of Wisconsin, before moving on to AAU professional basketball.

Oler, today, teaches physical education at Wauconda High School and is a former Wauconda High School girls varsity basketball coach (1978-85). He is the current sophomore basketball coach.

Butler summed up his career and the experience of his induction in some inspiring words.

"I guess this goes to show that for the little guys out there that think they are too small, there's hope if you believe in yourself," Butler said. "I mean, I was a guy who couldn't even really play on my high school team, my senior year I think I got a total of 32 at bats. But it was my dream to play baseball in the majors, so I just kept on trying."

About Dr. Marks:

Dr. Marks is a doctor of podiatric medicine who has been caring for people in McHenry Co. for more than 15 years.

He has cared for more than 10,000 patients, probably someone you know! He has helped train more than two dozen practicing foot surgeons as a surgical instructor since 1984.

Both of Dr. Marks' offices—located in McHenry and Woodstock—welcome new patients. They accept most insurance plans and Medicare.

Q: What causes heel pain?

A: Heel pain is usually caused by a chronic inflammation (long time or recurring irritation) of the ligament that passes from the bottom of the bones that make up the ball of the foot.

The inflammation causes the ligament to get tight. When the ligament gets tight, it peels on the heel bone, causing a boney ridge to develop.

This boney ridge is called a heel spur. Typical heel spur pain is described as pain which occurs after rest, and improves when walking.

Q: What can be done to treat hammertoes effectively?

A: X-rays of the foot are taken in the office to see if there is a spur, fracture or other problems.

Either oral medication or injections are used to reduce the inflammation. A custom-made, shock absorbing shoe insert is made to relieve the pressure on the heel, and to correct the way you walk.

Antioch Vikings sweep Grayslake Colts

The Antioch Vikings Youth Football program traveled to Grayslake and came home with a five game sweep. The Bantams, pee-wees, featherweights, lightweights and heavyweights posted wins in their respective divisions of play.

JoJo Johnson and Kevin Barrett scored two touchdowns each as the Viking Pee Wees shutout Grayslake 26-0. Running back Mike Wegreyn played an outstanding offensive game as did QB Tyler Ankney. It was the first regular season loss for the Colts in 4 years. Defensively, Brandon Geweke recovered two fumbles and Tyler Bynum and Ty Sitter played well for the defense.

The Viking heavyweights won their third game of the year 26-15. Running backs Brandon Zeilmann and Jim Breen played well with outstanding line play both offensively by Scott Gerke.

The Viking lightweights had all they could handle in winning their 58th straight game 13-12. In the most thrilling game of the day, Antioch came from behind a 12-7 score late in the game. Grayslake opened the scoring in the first quarter, but a 43 yard pass play and extra point by back Brett Bairstow put the Vikings ahead 7-6. Grayslake refused to fold and scored their second TD early in the fourth quarter on a 51 yard pass play. Then the Colts recovered a Viking fumble with six minutes left and things did n't look good for Antioch. The Viking held and forced Grayslake into a punt situation. With three minutes left, running back Taylor Hosick scored on a 55 yard pass play and Antioch hung on to win 13-12. Antioch got excellent defensive games from Bairstow, Chase Saldivar, Matt Houtari, Hosick, Jeff Welter, Luke Davis, and Jeff Canel. John Carroll intercepted a Grayslake pass.

Warren, Scouts battle for NSC golf bragging rights

The Warren vs. Lake Forest battle for supremacy in North Suburban Conference golf entered the week dead even.

Warren won a dual meet at Bittersweet, but Lake Forest won the NSC meet by two strokes. Both teams were among favorites at Tuesday's regional at Warren's home course.

"It was tough competition on a neutral course. Our first three guys did real well, but we could not keep the pace up," said WTHS coach Alex Richardson.

Stevenson was third with a 327, Mundelein fourth at 344; Libertyville fifth, 345; Zion-Benton sixth, 346 and Antioch last, 347. Andrew Price of Lake Forest was the meet medalist with a 74.

Mike Freeman had a 37-39 76; Jeff Dempski a 39-39-78; Dominic Strezo a 40-42 82 and John Billiter a 39-44 83 at Steeple Chase in Mundelein.

Richardson said the battle with the Scouts was a great match.

Freeman was one of few golfers to break 80 Thursday and was runner-up overall.

"It was different to read the greens. We played well. We are hoping to do better on our home course which we know so well," said Freeman.

Mundelein was a strong fourth with a 344. Bill Byrne had a 40-40 80; Chad Spahr 44-44 88; Lyle Spahr a 44-44 88; Eric Reed a 44-44 88; Nick Czerkles a 44-49 93.

"We were tied with Libertyville and Zion-Benton. We wanted to win it outright, but this is not an easy course. It is all course management. All three of our top guys are capable of better scores," said MHS coach Rick Foss.

Libertyville had a 345. Jeff Doherty led the way at 37-42 79; Chris Enlund had a 44-45 89; Scott Gira a 43 46 89; Rob Vikus a 42-46 88 and Ed Heiser a 43-47 90.

Antioch was in the middle-of-the-pack with a 347. John Logan fired a 41-40 81 for 10th; Matt Clutter a 43-38 86; Christian Litke a 45-42 87; Brian Haley a 45-48 93 and Phil Delany a 54-44 98.

Richardson said he expects a 320 score to win the team title at the regional meet. He said the Blue Devils made history this day as they were tied for the lead with Lake Forest coming in and ended up with runner-up trophy.

Amanda's dancing to Australia

Antioch High School students just may be dancing a classmate's way to Australia.

A benefit dance, Friday, Oct. 9 will aid softball player Amanda Pollitt's efforts to earn money to fund the trip down under to compete with the Field of Champions-USA traveling softball team in a series of friendship games.

The Antioch High freshman is inviting students to attend the dance Friday, Oct. 9 in the high school commons to raise funds to cover the cost of the November trip. The dance will be held from 8-10 p.m.

Admission is $5.

The dance will feature Hype Productions providing music and a light show along with several different prizes, which have been donated by area merchants.

Hype Productions, owned and operated by Trish Kuligowski of Chicago Heights, is donating their services, because Kuligowski knows what it is like to be chosen to participate in International athletic competitions. The 24-year-old entertainer played on a U.S. team dubbed "The Spirit of Chicago," in 1992 which toured Europe and participated in the Junior Olympics.

Kuligowski promises a night of music, lighting, funky costumes, and great staging to entertain participants at the dance.

Among the businesses who have donated items for prizes at the dance are: Burger King and the local band, Source, which has donated several compact discs for prizes.

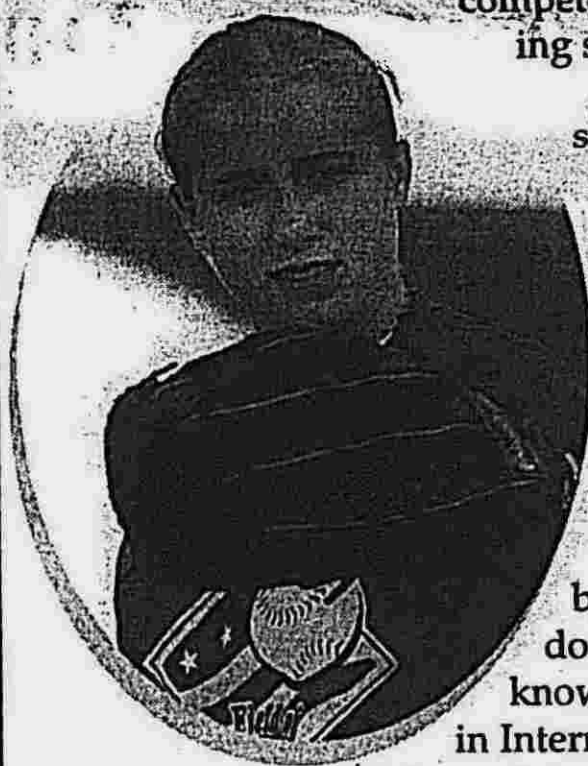

There will be a dance contest and other events in which the students will win the prizes.

At 14, Amanda is the youngest player on the team. Amanda and the team will leave for Victoria, Australia, Nov. 18 and return Nov. 30.

A trust fund has been established at the First National Bank Employee Owned to help Amanda fund her trip.

Richardson named athlete of the week

Jim Richardson was selected the Antioch High School athlete-of-the-week for the week ending Aug. 30.

Richardson played a critical part in Antioch's 42-30 come from behind victory over Plainfield. He was a leader by example in hustle and tenacity with big defensive hits and timely catches. For the game, Richardson had five catches and 115 yards, including a decisive 62-yard touchdown reception, three kick returns for 52 yards, one pass interception for 17 yards and five solo tackles

The First Chicago Bank of Antioch and Thelen Sand & Gravel will make a donation to the high school scholarship fund in Richardson's name. Congratulations also to: John Logan of the Boys Golf Team.

Lindenhurst U-9 Blaze improves to 6-0

The Lindenhurst U-9 boys Travel Soccer team solidified their first place standing with a 10-0 win over the Wheaton Wings. The Blaze scored early and often with five goals in the first quarter. The onslaught opened just two minutes into the game when Connor O'Keefe scored his first of 3 goals on an assist from Brian Mooney. O'Keefe scored again on an unassisted goal one minute later. Halfway through the period, Colin O'Malley rifled in two of his four goals with both assists going to Kurt Houghton. The scoring ended in this quarter when Houghton scored into the left corner of the net on a nice assist from Kyle Sytsma.

The second quarter saw O'Keefe getting his third goal from Brian Mooney. Then, with about two minutes left in the half, Kurt Houghton went down the right sideline deep into the Wing's penalty box and sent a cross over to Andrew Stein who sent the home team Blaze off to a 7-0 lead at halftime.

In the second half, the Wheaton Wings put some pressure on the home team but failed to score due to defensive pressure from the sweeper Ethan Hahn and defender Brian Hook. The Blaze, though, took advantage of their opportunities and Houghton scored an unassisted goal in the third quarter on a breakaway. O'Malley finished off his big day with two more goals on assists from O'Keefe and Matt Laine.

Overall, the Blaze outshot the Wings by a wide margin of 36 to 4. Sixty seven percent of their shots were on goal and the Wing's goalie made 14 saves. The Blaze's goal-keeping duties were shared by Andrew Stein, Tommy Sewart, Chris Church, and Alex Kelley. The Blaze travels to Chicago.

Ingrum named athlete of week

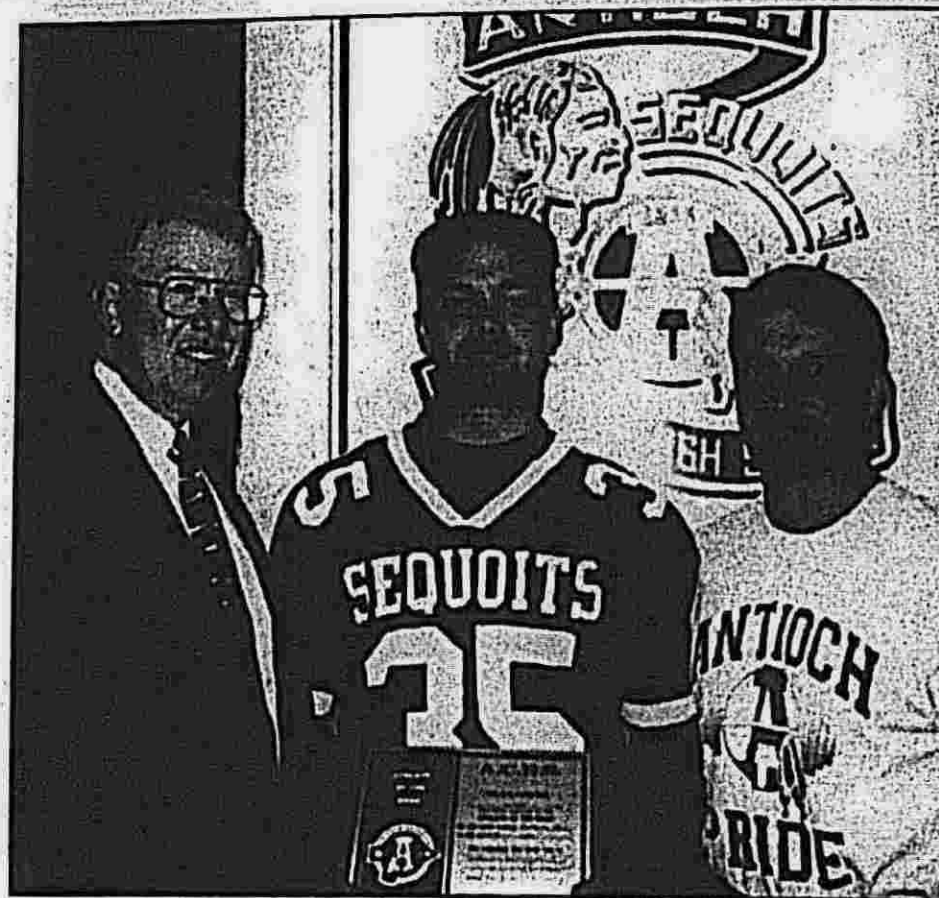

Matt Ingrum has been recognized as the athlete of week at Antioch High School for the week of Sept. 13.

Ingrum paced the Sequoits to a win in their conference opener over Zion-Benton giving the football team its best start since 1982.

His 221 yards (7.6 average) rushing was the seventh best single game performance in school history. Ingrum also scored a key touchdown at a critical stage in the game. His hard running and phenomenal average yards per carry opened up the offense for his teammates.

The attention he attracted allowed the other backs and receivers to amass another 286 yards for a total of 507 yards of offense, which broke the single game school record for total offense.

The First Chicago Bank of Antioch and Thelen Sand & Gravel will make a donation to the high school scholarship fund in the name of Ingrum.

Bob Mueller, left, president First National Bank of Chicago, Antioch Branch congratulates Matt Ingrum for being named athlete of the week. Coach Del Pechauer is on the right.

Talking Health

by Dr. Scott Reiser, D.C.

LISTEN TO YOUR PAINS!

Do you immediately want to take a pill when you experience pain? Pain is your body's warning system, and to merely mask pain is much like turning off a smoke alarm, and ignoring the fire.

Pain is often caused by a structural imbalance. The central nervous system extends from the brain through the spinal column, reaching every major part of the body, generating more than three million impulses every second. Pain can be a warning signal that something is wrong with the nervous system, and the problem may not necessarily be located at the site of the pain. If you only treat the pain, your health can deteriorate, and you may find yourself needing increasing dosages of pain relievers that can interfere with your ability to function normally.

Millions of people rely on chiropractic treatment—it is the largest drug free healing profession in the world. Your doctor of chiropractic can help you learn the real cause of your pain and protect your health with spinal care.

If maintaining your health and reducing stress is important to you, call Round Lake Beach Chiropractic at 847-740-2800 to make an initial, no obligation consultation with Dr. Scott G. Reiser. Our clinic is located at 314 Rollins Road, Round Lake Beach (Eagle Creek Plaza corner of Cedar Lake and Rollins Roads).

Dynamo Blue remain undefeated

For two seasons the Lindenhurst Dynamo Blue U-10 boys have been playing together, and for two seasons have posted a very impressive, 26-0-1 record in the regular season. Dynamo beat TC Arsenal Select of Aurora by a decisive 8-1 score. John Werchek scored his first goal of the season with a booming shot from 30 yards out.

Dynamo led the entire game start to finish with Andy Schultz, Peter Niles, Marek Smith, and Brett Paramski, all scoring their second goals of the season.

Sean Hertz added two goals of his own, and Aaron Nichols finished the scoring with 1 goal. Brett McKenzie had a nice game with two assists.

The Dynamo traveled to Crystal Lake and played a very good team. This was one of our tougher games of the season with the score at only 2-1 Dynamo through three full quarters of play.

Aaron Nichols turned his game up an extra notch in the fourth quarter and scored the final two goals of the game to give Dynamo a big 4-1 victory.

Sean Hertz had a good game also and added one goal and one assist, and Peter Niles put his second goal in the net for the second straight day.

Andy Schultz and Aaron Nichols each had one assist.

Virek Gollapudi, Brett Paramski and Marek Smith have been playing outstanding soccer for our team both offensively and defensively.

Dynamo travel to Park Forest to play in their Fall Classic Tournament. Last year this tournament was the toughest competition the team faced all year.

'Healing a person does not always mean curing a disease'

Hospice volunteers enrich final days

County has critical need for those willing to aid with family support, care, comfort

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

*"Healing a person does not always mean curing a disease."
— Hospice Founder Dame Cicely Saunders*

Hospice is not a place to go to die, but rather a concept of care based on the promise that when medical science can no longer add days to life, more life will be added to each day, according to the National Hospice Foundation of America.

Hospice Care seeks to enable patients to carry on their remaining days in an alert and pain-free manner, with symptoms under control, so that those last days may be spent with dignity, at home or in a home-like setting, surrounded by people who love them.

Bereavement care is critical to supporting surviving family members and friends. Volunteers play an important role in supporting the family.

The range of volunteer opportunities for people who support the idea of hospice care is very wide.

The need for volunteers in Lake County communities is ever present.

And there is more to volunteer work than just that of the patient care role.

There is work to be done as administrative support, for community activities, and even by teenagers.

Hospice is a way to provide medical, social, emotional, and spiritual care for people terminally ill in their own home or other location. It also includes assistance to the family.

And there is more to volunteer work than just that of the patient care role.

"We have yet to turn away a volunteer," said Lisa Marie Anderson, Manager of Hospice Development. "We will always need volunteers."

"We need them all over our service area, particularly here in Lake County and McHenry County," she said.

Volunteers are needed in all northwestern and western Lake County communities such as Lindenhurst, Lake Villa, Antioch, Wauconda, Mundelein, Libertyville, Grayslake, and Volo.

"Hospice started with the idea of community members helping one another," said Eleanor DeVries, volunteer coordinator at Lake Forest Hospital. She is a nurse with a masters degree in public health.

"Hospice is really a multi-disciplinary effort in handling end-of-life care."

The most well-known group of volunteers are those people who provide patient and family hospice care. "Typically, when people think of volunteering, that is what they think of," said Anderson. However, there are many other volunteer-supported needs.

Administrative support volunteers help in the offices of the hospice program. "I have about five now. We need to get more," Anderson said.

"It really is what it says. You come in the office and help with filing, data entry, mailings, fundraising," she said. Sometimes it may involve buying and delivering decorations for a tree or a menorah with candles.

"It's helping (patients) maintain family rituals."

Administrative volunteers are trained during a one to two week program. However, training may extend for months for other types of volunteers.

The community activities team works in the community to raise the visibility of the hospice care concept. The team is involved with fundraising, how to obtain hospice care, and answering basic questions.

"I look to them to do special events in their area," said Anderson. This may involve talks at churches and temples and community service clubs.

"We do a lot of health fairs and seniors groups," said Anderson. They may also conduct programs about bereavement.

"The community activities team goal is to provide education and awareness about hospice, bereavement, and other end of life issues in their neighborhood."

"We have a Junior Volunteer Program," Anderson said. This is for people of high school age.

"We use them in the office to work on office work," Anderson said. "They are also very good at writing thank you notes." They work on the mailing list.

Junior volunteers are not assigned to projects with confidential information.

This is not to say that high school age students can not work as patient care volunteers. There are two in the Oak Park area and one in the Chicagoland area who do, in-

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20

You have to be patient when it comes to a financial situation. Forcing a decision from those involved only will make you look bad. You just have to wait it out. An old friend needs a favor from you. Try to be helpful, but don't inconvenience yourself; it's not worth it in this case.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

Work hard and play hard this week, Taurus, and don't let your temper get the best of you. Enjoy yourself. Don't let minor annoyances bother you. In the grand scheme of things, they're not that important. That special someone takes you out for a night on the town late in the week. Have a good time. You deserve it.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

Don't let a business associate spoil your good mood. He or she is just frustrated with work; don't take what he or she says personally. Things are going well for you professionally — focus on that. Romance is in the air late in the week when you meet an interesting person while out with friends. Don't leave without a phone number.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

A close friend confides in you about a personal matter. Be sympathetic and supportive. Most importantly, keep his or her confidence. Don't tell anyone else about the conversation. The person whom you've been seeing has to go out of town. Don't worry — he or she isn't going to forget about you.

Leo - July 23/August 23

When it comes to your career, keep your vanity in check early in the week, Leo. You have to be a team player to make it through a difficult situation at work. The higher-ups are watching you. A loved one needs your help planning a family outing. Say yes, because it's sure to be a lot of fun.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

When it comes to meeting new people, be careful about whom you confide in. Someone who seems nice really isn't trustworthy. A loved one sets you up on a blind date. Don't be nervous. This one actually will work out. You'll have a good time and make a close friend.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

You can't avoid it any longer. You have to make a decision about a personal matter early in the week. Putting it off only has made you more confused. If you think about what you want and examine your options, you'll make a sound choice. Leo plays an important role.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

Your friends have a lot going on in their lives, and they want you to help them straighten things out. Don't do it. You have too many of your own problems to worry about. Take some time for yourself, and clear your mind. This will help you get things done. Your friends will understand and support your decision.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Stand tall when an acquaintance tries to blame you for his or her mistake. Remain calm, and explain what happened. People will be on your side. That special someone surprises you with a romantic gift. Let him or her know how much you appreciate it. Taurus plays a key role this week.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

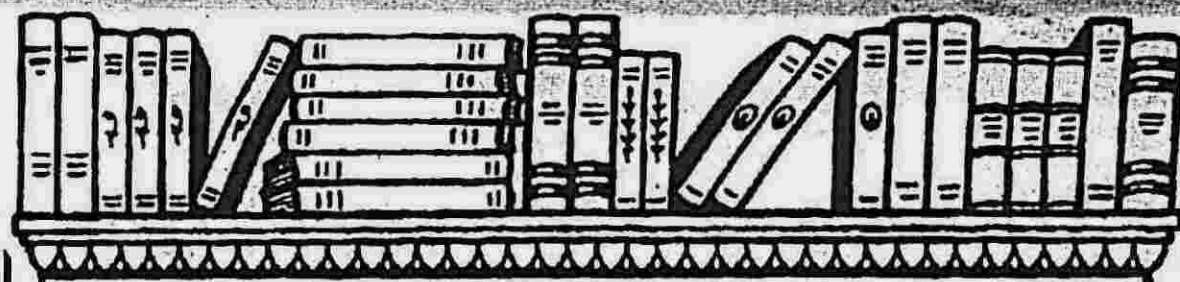

You have a lot to do this week, Capricorn. Staying focused is the only way that you'll get it all finished. Don't let a loved one distract you. Late in the week, you see a close friend in a new light. Could he or she be the one for you? Don't rule out the possibility just yet!

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

You're on your own early in the week, Aquarius, and that's just the way you like it. You get a lot accomplished and finally can think about yourself for a while. Splurge a little. Do something that you've always wanted to do, but never had the time for. This is your time to shine.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

You have a tough week ahead of you, but your sense of humor will get you through it easily. Just look at the bright side of things, instead of letting every little problem get to you. An old friend shows up at your door late in the week. Listen to him or her.

Preventing disease in the garden

While planning your garden for next year, you can plan with disease prevention in mind. Disease prevention actually begins before the growing season starts. If you make these factors a routine part of your garden planning, you will greatly reduce the chances of having diseases damage or destroy your plants.

When you choose new varieties of plants for your garden, you have a real opportunity to prevent disease problems in your low-maintenance landscape. Before you buy follow the guidelines listed below to make well informed purchases.

First of all consider the climate. Chose plants that are adapted to our northern climate. Also the location in your garden is important, plants planted in the wrong place are prime targets of insect and disease attack. If plants are grown in the conditions that they prefer, they will produce strong, healthy, growth that is naturally less susceptible to disease and infection.

The best way to tell if a plant is suitable to your specific climatic conditions, is to observe what the neighbors are growing successfully. Check out local botanical gardens and the Cooperative Extension Service. They can advise you on what are your best choices and which plants are proven performers.

Naturally, some plants are just plain disease-prone. Garden phlox most always gets powdery mildew and hybrid tea roses are pretty much always infected by black spot. In other words, do some research and discover which plants are fairly trouble free and which are disease-prone.

However, this does not mean you have to stay away from hybrid tea roses, just find a variety that is resistant or disease tolerant. Resistant means that plants will resist infection when exposed to certain pathogens. Tolerant plants may get the disease, but they usually will not be severely damaged by it. Many disease-resistant cultivars are also available for popular vegetable crops. Every year, breeders and nurseries are developing and selecting new disease-resistant choices for a wide range of edible and ornamental plants.

Besides controlling some insect pests, companion planting also works to reduce the spread of plant disease. Pathogens spread quickly among related plants that are grouped together in solid clumps. At the least, you can try mixing some herbs and flower plants in the vegetable garden to separate disease prone crops. Wise watering habits and mulching also help stop the spread of disease.

Throughout the season from seed starting to harvesting a combination of good gardening habits can keep your plants healthy and disease free. They are common sense principles that are a vital part of any disease-control program.

Until next time, peace.

Do I Need A Passport? Where Do I Get One?

by JIM WARNKEN,
President, North Star Travel, Inc.

So this is your first trip outside the old U. S. of A. Are you going to need a passport to clear immigration once you get to your destination?

If you're traveling to Canada or Mexico, as well as most of the more popular island nations of the Caribbean, or the Bahamas, you shouldn't need a passport. With the ever changing world of politics, though, make sure you check with your travel agent. You will, however, need a certified copy of your birth certificate with either a raised or multi-colored seal. Hospital certificates, as well as social security cards, are not considered adequate proof of citizenship. You'll also need a photo ID. Married women with birth certificates showing their maiden name must bring their marriage certificate.

Also, if only one parent is traveling to Mexico (as well as Central or South America) with children under the age of 18, that parent must have a notarized letter of consent from the absent parent, or a copy of the legal document giving that parent sole custody. If one parent is deceased, a copy of the death certificate is necessary.

International travel everywhere else will most likely require a passport. Some countries also require a visa. Check with your travel agent.

You can get a passport application at many post offices, clerks of courts and travel agencies. You can also download them via the internet at <http://travel.state.gov>. Fill it out but don't sign it yet.

In addition to a passport application, you'll need two recent, identical, 2x2 inch photos of "passport" quality. The "vending machine" photos are not going to do it. You'll also need a certified copy of your birth certificate (that's the one with the raised or multi-colored seal) and another form of ID such as a valid driver's license, military or corporate ID, and check for $65 to cover the fee of a 10-year passport.

If this is your first passport, you will have to apply in person. You can do this at your county courthouse as well as a few of the larger post offices.

There are ways to rush a passport, but to be on the safe side, allow at least six weeks for processing.

Again, while not required for travel everywhere, a passport makes clearing immigration much easier. You'll also have a nice souvenir of your travels, since each time you enter a country, immigration will stamp your passport.

Each day of the program will take place from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Activities will include archery, hiking, teams course, outdoor education, sports, foosball, crafts, and boating. Winter weather will pro-

"The program has been developed as a response to our customers and the surrounding communities need for safe and fun activities for children on school holidays," announced Craig White, Child Care director at YMCA Camp Duncan. Camp Duncan offers opportunity to learn new skills, develop new friendships, renew old friendships, and just have fun.

White directs a staff team of college students and teachers who supervise and participate with the children at all times. "The same team that leads and implements our summer program will successfully direct the "Kids Day Out Program," said White.

That flushing sound you hear is today's cartoon humor

Son #2 worked on construction jobs with my husband while he was home from college this summer. After a few weeks, they started to return home each day with their own private little joke.

"Howdy, ho!" my son would exclaim in a high, pitched voice, sending them both into fits of laughter.

At first, I thought it was cute. I just assumed they were experiencing some sort of weird male bonding.

But after about a week of this, I began to think they were both a little strange. "Howdy, ho!" my son would say, over and over, in that high pitched voice, never failing to make my husband laugh. I would stare at them, confused, wondering if inhaling sawdust induced some sort of construction euphoria.

Finally, I could stand it no longer.

"Okay, would someone please tell me what is so funny?"

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

"Mom, haven't you ever heard 'howdy, ho!' before?" said my son. "I don't know. Hum a few bars for me."

"Mom, you're out of it. Where have you been?"

I had to think about that question, because it was obvious that at the moment we were not on the same wavelength, that's for sure. Maybe not even the same planet.

"Forget where I've been, or where I'm at, or whatever - just TELL ME WHAT THE JOKE IS!"

"I can't tell you," he said. "You have to see it for yourself."

"See WHAT?"

"South Park. It's a cartoon. One of the characters says that."

"Which character?"

"His name is Mr. Hanky and he's a...he's a..." my son began, then both he and my husband started laughing again.

And still he wouldn't tell me. He insisted that I watch South Park that evening and see for myself.

So I did. And in case you haven't seen it, then you will be as shocked as I was to find out that Mr. Hanky is...well, he is...how can I say this delicately...Mr. Hanky is a brown, disgusting little oblong-shaped character who wears a Christmas hat and lives in the sewer. In other words, Mr. Hanky is toilet humor brought to life.

Not that anything could truly shock me after the Starr report, but I have to admit that I just don't get it. It seems to me this sort of toilet humor usually only appeals to children 11 and under.

For instance, I can remember laughing hysterically as a child over a joke about a toilet that drove people crazy because every time you sat down, it played the Star Spangled Banner and you had to stand up again. I know - it's not that funny, but it sure seemed like it then, along with a whole slew of similar subject jokes we told to each other as children.

We also thought that it was pretty cool to put our hand in our armpit and make disgusting noises that sounded suspiciously like flatulence. Not to mention learning how to belch by swallowing air - those of us who mastered this little trick were widely admired by our peers.

But at some point in our development, that kind of thing ceased to be funny to most people. Or at least I thought it did, until my son told me about South Park, which is apparently a successful show.

Actually, now that I think about it, the creators of South Park really missed the boat. Despite having a character like Mr. Hanky, whom by virtue of his sheer "grossness" would be a huge success with children, they aimed their cartoon at adults, adding violent themes and expletives to each episode.

If they were really aiming for the big bucks, they would have cleaned up the language and violence, grabbed a Saturday morning time slot, and centered their show around Mr. Hanky, adding a sidekick named Mr. Booger, along with some other characters like Belching Bob and Armpit Annie.

Of course, I imagine that there would be quite a negative response from a number of adults if a crass, juvenile show like "Mr. Hanky" were to appear on Saturday mornings. Especially those who currently enjoy "South Park".

Mostly because they work on Saturdays and might miss it.

Fall Diddley craft show returns to Boone County fairgrounds

The Mental Health Resource League for McHenry County will sponsor the 13th Annual Fall Diddley Craft Show at the Boone County

Fairgrounds in Belvidere. The show will be held on Saturday, October 10, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Sunday, October 11th, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The fairgrounds are located on Illinois Route 76 at the intersection of Business Route 20 in Belvidere. From I-90, take the Genoa Road exit and drive North for approximately five miles.

Formerly held at the McHenry County fairgrounds in Woodstock, the craft show was moved to BCF last year and was a huge success in the new location. This success was due to the return of familiar crafters and shoppers who expect a quality show. The fairground layout is efficient with adequate parking and good access roads. There will be the following changes for 1998: The admission will be $4 for ages 12 and over, food vendors will be added to reduce long lines, there will be no carnival rides (the accent will be on arts and crafts) and the League will hold a 50/50 raffle.

Fall Diddley is a juried arts and crafts show with a reputation for featuring hand-crafted, original work. Over 350 booths will be sheltered in fairground buildings and tents. On display will be an outstanding variety of folk art, wood carving, dried florals, pottery, painted and appliqued clothing, jewelry and fine art and much more! Hungry fairgoers will find a good selection of food vendors and the League's traditional bake sale.

The all-volunteer Mental Health Resource League strives to maintain high quality in its annual craft shows, Fair Diddley in May (on the Woodstock City Square since 1969) and Fall Diddley in October. All proceeds benefit more than 20 agencies concerned with mental health services. In 1997, $196,000 was raised for the agencies.

Crafters from 13 states will sell their goods at Fall Diddley. The show is filled and no stand-bys will be accommodated. For 1999 information, crafters may write to MHRL, P.O. Box 204, McHenry 60050 or call (815) 385-5745.

Volunteer Mary Ellen Howard, as Scarlet Scarecrow, will sell 50/50 raffle tickets at the 13th Annual Fall Diddley® Craft Show on October 10 and 11 at the Boone County Fairgrounds in Belvidere.—Submitted photo deed, work with terminally ill patients. It is the exception, however.

HOSPICE: Volunteers bring peace to final days

For example, one student, on her own, helped a homeless person with AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, through her illness process. "That's an extraordinary example," Anderson said. "She was providing hospice care without knowing that she was doing that."

"I can't think of a negative experience we've had with the kids," Anderson said. "Usually we get them in their senior year."

"Our (hospice care) patients have ranged from two-weeks to 103 years old," Anderson said. The volunteers are mature teenagers and older. She said that the kinds of volunteer work available to be done are as varied as the patients and the volunteers themselves.

As a result, the qualities and character of a hospice volunteer, in some ways, are no different than for other volunteer work. "Volunteers across the board genuinely care for people," DeVries said.

"I think they are very good listeners," she said of her patient care volunteers. "They're very willing to be available when needed."

"They're committed to the fact they're going to 'be there' for someone," she said.

"Healthcare is changing so the role of the volunteers is changing." Because so many people work now, daytime availability is much more difficult to provide.

DeVries cites several characteristics of hospice volunteers. They must have a certain amount of discipline and serious recognition of their responsibility. Confidential information must be treated as such. There are rules, regulations, and policies to follow.

"It isn't a social role," DeVries said.

The training sessions provide needed skills and techniques. They also serve as a way for volunteers to teach one another the more unique aspects of their work.

Initial sessions explain what hospice is. Long-term volunteers explain to new people what their experiences have been like.

Types of communication skills are discussed and practiced.

Topics that are covered include: spirituality, cultural differences, and how families and patients may feel.

Volunteers, she said, are an "intimate stranger."

Sometimes people want to talk. Other times they do not. "There's a huge role of silence," she said.

"What we try to do in the training is just give people the skills so they would be comfortable."

The eight to ten week training program allows some types of volunteers a chance to learn more about the help they can provide with the role they will play. It also helps the staff of the hospice learn about them.

"What we try to do is set up the kind of things they may face."

The training continues over the years. "We have quarterly 'in-services,'" she said. Information is added to the training program they received. Perhaps new techniques, such as music therapy, are taught. "They learn a good deal from each other and their insights," DeVries said.

Those who may like to help the lives of terminally ill people and their families can express their initial interest to DeVries at Lake Forest Hospital, 847-295-3619, extension 6402, or to Lisa Marie Anderson at Rush Hospice Partners, 708-386-9191.

DeVries said that hospice volunteers give assistance to the quality of the terminal process for people. Volunteers are what make it happen.

"We will always need volunteers," said Anderson.

'What Dreams May Come' paints a vivid picture

Life, love, hope. Death, loss, despair. These are all topics touched upon in the film "What Dreams May Come". The most fitting topic however is in the title because the film provides the sensation of a dream.

"What Dreams May Come" is a vividly visual experience as we follow a man on his journey through the afterlife.

The story follows Chris (Robin Williams), a man who has seen the splendor life has to offer and also experienced the despair that comes along the way.

At first the plot moves very quickly as we see snippets of the life this man has lived with his artist wife Annie (Annabella Sciorra) and their two children. When his life ends tragically early in the film we are immersed into Chris' struggle with his existence following his death.

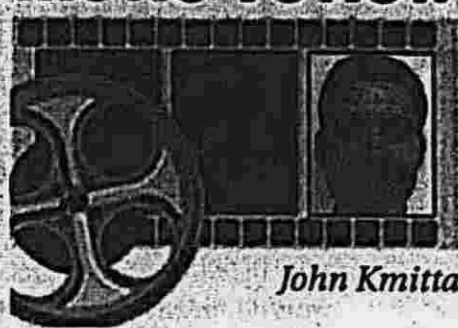

For a few moments the film teeters with shades of "Ghost" and "It's a Wonderful Life" as he views the world of the living from his spiritual existence. The movie then takes those notions and pushes them over the edge into a stunningly vibrant look at the afterlife.

We see heaven as Chris would in the colorful hues of his wife's paintings. This "Alice in Wonderland" world serves as stark contrast to the world of the living and even more poignantly against the bleak landscape of hell.

Chris' guide through the afterlife is Doc (Cuba Gooding Jr.), a voice of reason who helps Chris in his struggle to determine what is real and what is perception in this existence of spirituality. Along the way we see how his love for his wife transcends mortal existence.

Sciorra is convincing as Chris' anguished widow and Williams is perfectly cast as Chris. He uses the movie review

dramatic force that has won him an Oscar and combines it with the exuberant imagination he has so brilliantly used as a comedian.

This view of life after death seems tailor made to both his flamboyance and his ability to convincingly handle deep human emotion.

We are shown most of Chris' life through flashbacks. Flashbacks usually don't work well in films because they tend to cause confusion. Here they work amazingly well because not only do they show the contrast between life and death, they show the confusion Chris is experiencing as he attempts to grasp the varying planes of existence.

WHAT DREAMS MAY COME

Director
Vincent Ward

Starring
Robin Williams
Annabella Sciorra
Cuba Gooding, Jr.

At times, the flashbacks become a bit drawn out and muddled but there are enough plot twists to keep the story progressively drawing the viewer deeper.

The difficult subject matter is handled relatively well by painting an artistic vision with movie effects and heartfelt acting. They combine to build to a forcefully emotional finale.

As a critic this film is difficult to critique because it is someone's vision of spirituality.

If you go into this film with an open mind it will definitely make you think about life, death, dreams and everlasting love.

For having that kind of impact I give "What Dreams May Come" three and a half out of five popcorn boxes.

Robin Williams stars as Chris, a husband and father who finds himself in his own version of heaven in "What Dreams May Come." Chris chooses as his heaven his favorite painting by his wife, which makes this an incredibly visual and dramatic movie, reminiscent in style of both "Ghost" and "Alice in Wonderland."

Looking for good bathroom reading?

Start with a history of America's fascination with the smallest room in the house

There's no delicate way to say this. The next time you head to the restroom, take a quick glance... ah... down, or behind you - as the case may be.

What do you see?

With more than 300 million residential and commercial bathrooms nationwide, seven times out of 10, the word you're most likely to encounter in that oh-so-private place is "American Standard," the well-known brand name of the world's largest plumbing products manufacturer.

Innovative bathroom products

While many Americans nervously giggle whenever the topic of toilets and other bathroom fixtures surfaces among friends, families or co-workers, many would shudder at the thought of not having such conveniences. In fact, less than a hundred years ago, most Americans went without many bathroom conveniences. According to the "Reeve's Journal of Plumbing, Heating and Cooling", only five percent of the homes in America contained a bathtub in 1930.

American Standard was at the forefront of many of today's conveniences, notes Frank Vecchio, a coordinator with American Standard's Architectural and Engineering Service Group, who has worked for the company for more than 34 years.

"American Standard played a big part in not only making lives of Americans more convenient and sanitary," Vecchio says, "but for giving many people a reason to actually enjoy their bathrooms."

American Standard's roots reach back more than 130 years to 1860, when a small brass foundry was opened in Louisville, Ky., under the name of Ahrens & Ott Manufacturing Co. Over the next 60 years, a number of small companies, including American Radiator and Standard Sanitary, merged with Ahrens & Ott to eventually form American Standard. The "American Standard" brand name dates back to 1899, when the word "Standard" was stamped on plumbing fixtures and faucets made by Standard Sanitary.

As America grew, so grew its appetite for household conveniences, including more luxurious, yet dependable, bathroom fixtures. American Standard fed that hunger and in the process became a household name. Today, the company is a leading global, multifaceted enterprise with 108 manufacturing facilities in 35 countries, 1997 sales of more than $7 billion and employment in excess of 51,000.

Looking back through American Standard's archives, which date back to 1888, it's clear that American Standard and its predecessors were instrumental in developing many innovative new features that have become standard in today's modern bathroom.

In the early years of the company's history, engineers focused their attention on the practical aspects of bathroom life, the most challenging of which was the disposing of toilet waste water - a problem that vexed societies for centuries. Coinciding with this challenge was the much broader and even more challenging aspects of installing modern sewer and water systems in towns and cities across the United States.

One of the earliest records of American Standard's innovative heritage dates back to 1895 when Thomas Maddock's Sons Co., a Trenton, N.J., manufacturer of sanitary pottery ware that was later acquired by American Standard, produced the first vitreous china lavatory. Vitreous china is a type of condensed china (pottery) that forms the basis for most toilets and bathroom sinks today. Thomas Maddock also is credited for being the first person to successfully marry a toilet with a flushing water supply line.

"Vitreous china was revolutionary," Vecchio says. "The key was the glazing process which made it impervious to bacteria and staining. It dramatically reduced health problems."

In the early 1920s, American Standard pioneered the combination fitting that for the first time allowed hot and cold water to mix together through one tap. Later, in 1928, American Standard introduced the first built-in bathtub with an integral apron. This development led to the replacement of many claw-foot bathtubs, which were smaller and more difficult to clean.

The company also was a pioneer in marketing color plumbing fixtures, which hadn't been available until the late 1920s. Before then, bathroom fixtures were available in white, white and white, according to Gail Casky Winkler, author of the 1989 book, "The Well-Appointed Bath." The efforts of American Standard and other bathroom fixture companies forever transformed the bathroom — it actually could be a room that one could enjoy.

Like most American manufacturers, American Standard shifted its operations in support of the Allied war effort during World War II. Following the war, American Standard created a new breed of bathroom fixtures that met the demands of millions of new post-war homes. As the size and quantity of new homes expanded, so did the number of bathrooms in each home. By the 1960s, powder rooms were commonplace and master bathrooms were a popular feature in larger homes.

Ahead of its time

Many of today's most popular bathroom amenities — including whirlpools and steam rooms — were actually first introduced by American Standard. In fact, American Standard was often years ahead of its time.

Invented by American Standard in 1969, the whirlpool consisted of a pump system with one main jet that created invigorating water action. However, the product was abandoned for lack of consumer interest. The whirlpool was revisited and popularized by a number of companies in the late 1970s. Today, American Standard offers a full line of whirlpools.

The Shower Tower also was ahead of its time. Introduced in 1969, the Shower Tower featured dual adjustable fixed showerheads plus a hand-held personal showerhead — all integrated into a pre-plumbed wall system. The Shower Tower also included a pressure balanced system that for the first time prevented unwanted scalding (a feature that later would be mandated by local, state and national housing regulations.) It wasn't until the late 1980s that multiple-head shower systems became popular.

A tradition of innovation

One of American Standard's most popular innovations came in 1963, when the company marketed its toilets with the Vent-Away (TM) feature, which vented unpleasant odors with a jet-water action with the press of an actuating button on the side of the toilet bowl. The Vent-Away feature was popular until new water conservation regulations forced its discontinuation.

American Standard also was the first to develop an alternative to rubber faucet washers. In 1968, the company pioneered Ceramic Disc Valving, the plumbing industry's standard for drip-free faucets. Ceramic Disc Valving uses a durable material that resists wear and leaking, unlike conventional rubber washers that eventually wear down from constant grinding. Most of today's top-quality faucets utilize ceramic disc technology.

Another pioneering breakthrough occurred 20 years later when American Standard introduced Americast (R) as an alternative to cast iron tubs and sinks. Americast is a patented process that bonds a lead-free porcelain surface to a metal base and a structural composite backing. While Americast has the same thickness as cast iron — and lasts just as long — it has half the weight. Americast is much easier to install than the heavier cast iron products and acts as an insulator to keep bath water warmer. Americast sinks and tubs have become so popular that American Standard stopped manufacturing cast iron tubs and sinks in 1997.

Not all American Standard innovations have been as practical as Ceramic Disc Valving or Americast. For example, American Standard's Ambiance 2500 featured Sensorium — an electronic bathing system offering the ultimate in bathing pleasure. Corresponding with the growing use of computers and home electronics, the Ambiance 2500 was introduced as a concept product in 1988 with a price tag of more than $40,000. Just a few were sold, but oh what they received — a bathtub wired with a telephone, TV and stereo system. The Ambiance 2500 even featured a closed-circuit TV system that allowed the bather to see who's at the front door. And, with the press of a few buttons on the telephone, the Ambiance 2500 could be instructed to fill the bathing pool — from any location (imagine having a hot bath awaiting at the end of a long hard day).

Bathroom of tomorrow

Despite these and other developments, Americans still remain a bit conservative when it comes to their bathroom products. But that hasn't stopped American Standard from creating new products for today's demanding consumer. American Standard continues to push the edge in both the functional as well as aesthetic aspects of bathroom fixture design.

"As we go into the next century, our challenge is to make the bathroom less sterile and more a room that is in keeping with changing lifestyles and designs," says Lance Nordell, team leader, chinaware at American Standard. "Consumers can expect to see bath fixtures more closely reflect the design themes of the home." Nordell says bath decor will be warmer and friendlier.

American Standard has responded to these trends with the recent introduction of new suites and collections like the Savona (TM) and Reminiscence (TM) collections, which reflect home design themes such as traditional, vintage or contemporary.

"Bathrooms should be practical, but they also need to be comfortable havens," adds Nordell. "And that's why we're constantly seeking to enhance the performance, quality and design of our products."

As for functional aspects, the quest among American Standard's engineers and other bathroom fixture manufacturers is to ensure that 1.6-gallon toilets, as regulated by national housing regulations, flush like the 5- or 3.5-gallon toilets of yesteryear. American Standard has responded by making numerous advances in the flushing capabilities of its toilets.

A financial formula for retirement

A lot is written about planning for retirement. But what do you do when you get there?

Retirement planning is never finished. It begins with building assets, continues with helping them grow, and winds up with preserving your investments and enjoying the fruits of your labor. Each phase requires vigilance and fine-tuning.

Adjusting your portfolio for retirement ideally should begin about five years before you retire. Assets not protected by retirement tax shelters, such as employer-sponsored plans and IRAs, should be repositioned gradually to avoid immediate heavy tax burdens. Also, gradual readjustment could help you avoid any large movements during a bad market.

When you're closer to retirement and in your retirement years, look for total return, or growth of principal combined with income. For example, a stock that pays a 3 percent dividend and appreciates 8 percent in value provides an 11 percent total return.

Compare that to a bond or

Treasury security paying 5 percent interest. Fixed-income securities offer no opportunity for growth if held to maturity, so in this case your total return is 5 percent.

The reliability of fixed-income investments is important in retirement, but it's also important for your assets to grow. That 5 percent return won't buy as much five years from now as it does today. Only through growth will you be able to keep up with inflation.

Another consideration as you begin retirement is to have a cash cushion to get you through at least one year without disturbing your investments. This lets your investments, particularly your new ones, grow before you tap them for regular income.

How much income you can reasonably expect in retirement depends on the amount of money you have, how much income you need and how much risk you're willing to take.

For example, assume a couple with a nest egg of $500,000 distributes their assets among a variety of investments. Five percent, or $25,000, in a money market fund paying 4 percent would yield them $1,000 annually. More important, they have immediate cash for emergencies.

The couple could invest 35 percent of the total, or $175,000, in a diversified portfolio of high-quality bonds. A 6 percent return would net them $10,500 in income.

The remaining 60 percent, or $300,000, could go into a professionally managed stock mutual fund providing competitive total returns. Withdrawing 6 percent from the total return could add $18,000 to this couple's income, for a total of $29,500. If the fund's total return is more than 6 percent, the excess can be reinvested to keep the couple's principal growing.

This is just one example.

Check with your investment representative for suggestions and hypothetical examples of how different funds have performed during a variety of market conditions. A careful balance of prudent risk, distribution of assets and appropriate investments is the formula for a financially sound retirement. Your investment professional should help you devise a formula that will work for you.

Deadline nears for Roth IRA Conversions

By NOAH SEIDENBERG
Financial Consultant

The introduction of Roth IRAs this year spurred a barrage of investor interest. One of the largest mutual fund companies experienced a 155 percent increase in new IRA business this year, more than half of which came from Roth IRAs. A leading brokerage firm whose IRA business was 300 percent higher in the first six weeks of 1998 than the same period in 1997 also attributed half of this increase to Roth IRAs. Money magazine even coined a new term — Rothomania — to describe the phenomenon.

The big attraction of Roth IRAs is that you can withdraw your money tax-free in the future — a feature not offered by traditional IRAs. This has caused many investors to convert their regular IRAs to Roths. In fact, a large percentage of Roth IRA business has come in the form of IRA conversions.

If you're considering converting your traditional IRA to a Roth, be aware that you'll owe taxes. Any deductible contributions you made to your regular IRA, plus all earnings, are taxable.

There is one break, however: If you make your conversion by Dec. 31, 1998, you don't have to claim the taxable amount all at once. You can spread your tax liability over the next four years. If you convert after 1998, however, you will have to claim the full taxable amount as income in the year you make the conversion.

Should you convert your traditional IRA to a Roth? That depends. For one thing, you can't convert to a Roth IRA if your adjusted gross income exceeds $100,000. This is the limit for both single filers and married couples filing jointly. A married person filing separately cannot convert.

If you're near retirement, the taxes you pay on conversion may outweigh the tax benefits you'd receive when you withdraw the money. But younger people with small IRA balances may be good candidates for conversion, especially if they convert by Dec. 31, 1998. Just be sure you have money outside your IRA to pay your tax liability.

Roth IRAs and traditional IRAs offer different benefits. Roth IRAs feature tax-free withdrawals and no required minimum distributions. Regular IRAs, however, offer deductible contributions for many people. Whether you should convert a regular IRA to a Roth depends on a variety of factors that should be weighed carefully by you and your financial professional.

Whichever option you choose, you can be certain that the tax-deferred growth offered by all IRAs still makes them one of the best retirement-planning vehicles around.

CLC class offered on tax changes and Roth IRA

Changes in the 1997 income tax laws and the new non-tax deductible Roth IRA will be discussed in a class offered by the College of Lake County. The two-session class (GSP 035-001) will be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. on Oct. 8 and 15 at the Lake County High Schools Technology Campus, 19525 W. Washington St., Grayslake. The class will be repeated on Nov. 5 and 12 at Wauconda High School.

Jeffrey Sannes, a certified financial planner and a certified public accountant, will explain the money-saving benefits resulting from the new tax laws, including lower taxes when selling stocks, bonds, mutual fund shares and real estate. Sannes also will answer questions concerning the Roth IRA, including whether individuals who currently have a traditional IRA should convert to the Roth IRA or whether opening a Roth IRA is more beneficial than the traditional one.

The cost is $25. For more information, call 543-2022. To register by phone, call 223-1111.

Could the Capitol Hill slayings have been avoided?

To reduce violence, provide proper medical care to the mentally ill

Could Rusty Weston's alleged gunfire spree, which left two guards dead in the U.S. Capitol this summer, been avoided? Prominent local medical and legal experts think that's possible.

"This is another example of how a seriously mentally ill Illinois resident failed to receive adequate care," said Sidney Weissman, M.D., president of the Illinois Psychiatric Society. The Society, which represents the medical doctors who diagnose and treat severe mental illness, is focusing on this issue during Mental Illness Awareness Week, continuing through Oct. 10.

According to Weissman, as well as other medical and legal experts, the health insurance industry and the state legal and mental health systems continue to ignore the medical needs of seriously mentally ill patients. Although most mentally ill people are more likely to be victims of crime than perpetrators, some people with serious mental illnesses will ultimately commit a violent crime.

"Unless we take action, we will continue to learn about seriously ill people, like Weston, in newspaper headlines and on the evening news—after it is too late," Weissman said.

Health insurance discrimination

Weissman and other specialists in mental illness and violence outlined some of the ways crime by the mentally ill could be reduced. One element of the problem, according to Weissman, is that most health insurance plans blatantly discriminate against mental illness. In effect they sentence anyone with serious mental disorder to insufficient care, or no care at all.

"Insurance companies, corporate leadership and some policy makers base their health care decisions on outmoded stereotypes," Weissman said. He said the facts about mental illness today are far different from their perceptions:

• Many severe mental illnesses are rooted in biology. There is no medical justification to insure illnesses such as diabetes, heart disease or cancer—as well as other brain diseases, such as epilepsy or Parkinson's Disease—and refuse or reduce coverage for mental illnesses.

"...When I see that seriously ill patients are becoming sicker, I'd rather err on the side of caution and admit them than play Russian roulette with the patient's and the public's safety."

James Cavanaugh, M.D., member and past president of the Illinois Psychiatric Society

• Severe mental illnesses are definable, diagnosable and treatable, just like diabetes, heart disease or cancer. In fact, psychiatry has a higher success rate than many other branches of medicine. For example, the treatment success rate for major depression is 85 percent; for panic disorder and bipolar (manic depressive) illness, 80 percent; and for schizophrenia, 60 percent. By contrast, improvement rates for common heart and artery surgery, such as angioplasty and atherectomy, are 41 percent and 52 percent respectively.

• Numerous studies and the experience of states which have passed laws to end insurance discrimination indicate that appropriate treatment of people with mental illnesses cost-effective.

Adequate treatment of individuals with severe mental illnesses actually saves society money over time.

Illinois House Bill 111, which is designed to end insurance discrimination against severe mental illness, overwhelmingly passed the House last year. However, the state Senate has refused to take action on the bill.

When the verdict is 'not guilty by reason of insanity'

An NGRI (Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity) verdict means that the defendant who committed the crime was not accountable for his/her behavior due to a mental defect or illness. A sensational murder trial or a soap opera drama can reinforce the public perception that far too many criminals escape punishment by faking insanity.

A study of the insanity pleas in eight states (California, Georgia, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Washington and Wisconsin) told another story. For example, although half of the insanity pleas were for violent crimes, only 15 percent were for murder charges. The rest of the defendants were on trial for robbery, smaller felonies or property offenses.

Overall, the insanity defense was raised in about one-percent of all felony cases and the acquittal rate was approximately 26 percent.

Furthermore, nine out of ten of the defendants who entered the plea were diagnosed with a serious mental illness. The majority were seriously mentally ill and had prior hospitalizations; only the sickest were actually successful with this plea. Studies have also shown that when found NGRI, the individual is likely to be held as long as or longer than people found guilty who serve time in prison.

Problem:

• Many health insurance plans do not cover severe mental illness.

• Sufficient aftercare and continuation of care for the mentally ill often are not available.

• Stringent commitment rules make it impossible to get help for potentially violent patients whose condition is worsening.

• Laws prohibiting the sale of firearms to felons (especially violent offenders) are not always tightly enforced. (The Illinois application for a firearm owners ID card does ask of the applicant has been in a facility for the care and treatment of mental illness within the last five years or has ever been convicted of a felony.)

Possible Solution:

• Pass Illinois House Bill 111 or similar legislation to end health insurance discrimination against serious mental illness.

• Provide and coordinate medical care and appropriate social services, such as housing and employment.

• Pass "need for treatment" commitment laws, keeping in mind both the rights of society and its citizens.

• Strengthen and enforce gun control laws and background checks for felons.

Ways to take heart in a hurried world!

Dear Readers,

Does it feel to you like life is extremely hurried? If it isn't the kids' lessons, it's work. If it isn't work, it's fixing dinner. If it isn't fixing dinner, it's the kid's sports events, etc. etc. etc.

Sometimes, it becomes difficult to focus on the great things in life because we're running to catch up with life! I wanted to do a column for you on some of the great things that I have felt in my own life that have really helped me to see things clearly.

I think these will inspire you like they have inspired me. If you try to at least think of these things once a day to once a week you will feel what I am talking about. Here they are...

- Think of someone you care a great deal about and put their needs before your own even though it is inconvenient for you! Notice the look on their face when they know it. Notice how it feels to have given that.

- Take a moment out to actually look at a beautiful sunset. The last one I did this with was the most incredible shades of pink and purple I have ever seen. I actually took the kid I was working with at the time and took him over to the window with me to look at this incredible sunset. It really was awe-inspiring!

- Get together with someone just to laugh really hard! I don't mean twitting over a joke. I mean the kind of laughter that you feel all over your body. Not only is it a great feeling, but it is supposed to be a great workout for the heart muscles! I can remember being in high school and getting together with my best friend Stacey and first just scar-

PARENT'S PLACE

Sherri Singer,

ing the daylights out of each other and then laughing for hours! It's great fun, especially if you are a person who spends most of your time running from pace to place.

- Take a good hard look at your children's faces and see how incredibly beautiful they are! Sometimes we take this for granted and don't look closely enough!

- In a similar vein, if you have dogs or cats, take some time and look at how beautiful they are. Look at their markings and how their fur flows. Also, if you take some time and sit with them by yourself, you can find an incredible peace. They say that animals can actually lower your blood pressure! I believe it and have experienced it!

- Think about the last miracle in your life! Miracles happen every day! Sometimes we just don't notice them. Our lives take many twists and turns and sometimes they feel like they are bad directions, when they are really miracles in disguise. When I think of some of the things that have happened to me in my life that would have sent me down a completely different path (the wrong path) I get awe-inspired.

Some of the things that I lost along the way that made me feel terrible at the time, were actually things that were putting me on the right road that ultimately took me where I have gotten to, which is exactly where I wanted to be! Thinking about it makes me feel terrific. We all have those experiences and thinking about them even once in a while can be incredible.

- Think about the people in your life that you are so thankful for! We all have em!

- Do something silly that isn't in your character or isn't something you'd do as an adult! Obviously, don't do anything illegal or anything that will get you in trouble, but silly, innocent things can be great. I can remember a time that work was stressful and one day, I called a friend and we went swinging. No, I don't mean at a bar. I mean on a playground. We actually got in the swings and swung as high we could. It was wonderful fun! Your thing might be different, but can be equally as fun!

The bottom line is that we are here on this earth to enjoy our lives. Life is short and is meant to be lived every moment. Sometimes, we end up on "auto pilot" to the point that we miss so much. I have had weeks go by and I can't believe the week has actually gone by already.

It is important to take little breathers and actually look around at what is there.

I'm suggesting that these little things and others can be ways of you tapping yourself on the shoulder to look around and see what great things there are to be experienced in your life!

MENTALLY ILL: To avoid violence, proper medical care must be provided to mentally ill

What are some other reasons Weston and others with severe mental illness might not be under a doctor's care?

Urgent commitment standards

For starters, it's difficult to get someone to a psychiatric hospital against their will. The individual must first demonstrate that he is an immediate danger to himself or others. The patient's doctor, family and friends may realize the person is getting sicker. However, the gun must be loaded, the knife drawn—or close to it—before a citizen can be involuntarily committed to a psychiatric ward. "This is a problem we deal with all the time," said Randy Wells, executive director of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill in Illinois. His organization represents the mentally ill and their families, and it is the families who often bear the brunt of such violence.

Unfortunately, predicting which patients will become violent is all but impossible. Psychiatrists estimate they can get about one third of the time. There are just too many variables, including the patient's disorder, medical history, medication (or lack of), social stresses, etc.

"So when I see that seriously ill patients are becoming sicker, I'd rather err on the side of caution and admit them than play Russian roulette with the patient's and the public's safety," said James Cavanaugh, M.D., a member and past president of the Illinois Psychiatric Society. He is chairman of the board and president of the Isaac Ray Center in Chicago, which provides medical treatment for the mentally ill at Cook County Jail and for other offender populations.

Some states (Washington, Wisconsin, Kansas, Colorado, North and South Carolina, Arizona and Texas) have passed less stringent "need for treatment" commitment laws, but Illinois has not followed suit.

Aftercare and de-institutionalization

But the problems in treating the severely mentally ill don't stop there. Once a patient has been stabilized and released, he or she may not get any further medical care. Without proper follow up and medication, the patient's condition will worsen, just as a heart or cancer patient's would.

A policy called "deinstitutionalization" has moved the seriously mentally ill out of psychiatric hospitals and into community clinics. This movement, which began approximately 30 years ago, was designed to mainstream citizens with mental disorders back into community life and reduce the costs of their care. Unfortunately, community mental health facilities do not always have the resources to care for these patients and connect them with the other services they need, such as housing and employment. Nationally, some of the fallout of deinstitutionalization has been increasing re-admission rates to psychiatric hospitals and growing numbers of homeless mentally ill.

Legally, family members and physicians can petition the courts for mandated outpatient treatment when a patient is released from the hospital. The patient must either continue care in the community or else be readmitted to the hospital. However, the judiciary is reluctant to order or enforce such post-release treatment, especially for patients in public institutions or jails.

Mandated aftercare for ex-convicts

"Although laws are in place that allow a judge to mandate such medical care when an offender is released back into the community, most courts don't utilize them," said S. Jan Brakel, J.D., vice president of Administration, Legal Affairs and Program Development at the Isaac Ray Center. Without such a court order, the individual is turned loose, perhaps at 2 a.m. with no prescriptions for medication and no mandated follow-up visits with a doctor. Without treatment to sicker than control the illness, he or she will probably be back in the legal system before long—when he or she left—adding another crime to the police blotter.

Why the reluctance to mandate treatment? "We in this country are very concerned with the balance between individual rights and the need to protect society, and that's good," Brakel said. "However, a seriously mentally ill person may have little insight into what his or her actual mental condition really is. A schizophrenic patient may not realize he is sick. So when his public defender asks him, 'Do you want treatment?' naturally he'll refuse it."

According to Brakel, judges also realize that even if they do mandate care at a mental health center, the resources to make sure that happens aren't always in place. Yet, many judges will mandate medical care for a minor, arguing that a child does not comprehend the ramifications of avoiding treatment. "Some seriously mentally ill people need to be treated similarly, as they have equally little insight into their need for medical help," Brakel said.

The jail population is no exception. Many of the inmates admitted to the Cook County Department of Corrections need psychiatric services. A 1994 study calculated that 6.1 percent of the male detainees and twice the number of females (12.3 percent) had a serious mental illness. By 1996, Cermak Health Services of Cook County, where Isaac Ray Center clinicians provide on-site mental health care in the jail, admitted 6,301 patients—far more than any other public psychiatric facility in our state. What's more, as many as 65-70 percent of those admitted had previous mental health records.

Judges often mandate treatment for substance abuse when an inmate is released. If he or she fails to comply, the court can simply issue a warrant for arrest. That threat is usually enough to get the individual to treatment. By working closely with the courts, the Isaac Ray Center has been able to bring about similar results for NGRI (Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity) offenders after their release. According to Dr. Cavanaugh, the program has worked well, with virtually no recidivism. It's an approach which the Center would like to see expanded beyond the NGRI population to all of the offender population with diagnosed mental illness.

Weissman agrees, and added, "It also makes sense to provide continuity of care for seriously ill patients who are not yet in the criminal justice system. Perhaps the tragedy of the Capitol Hill slaying will move us closer to that goal."

Animal bites which result in hand injury requires prompt attention

The physicians at Hand Surgery Associates have seen several hand injuries resulting from animal bites. These injuries, primarily from dogs and cats, have caused lacerations of nerves and tendons, bone fractures, and serious infections. Proper wound care is critical to diminish the likelihood of infection. Specific antibiotics may also be prescribed to prevent complication.

When animal bites occur, prompt medical treatment is needed. Hand injuries may require examination by a Hand Surgeon to determine whether tendon or nerve lacerations are suspected. X-rays are often needed to detect bone fractures and other joint injuries. Surgery is performed to repair injured structures and stabilize fractured bones. Proper wound care is critical to diminish the likelihood of infection. Specific antibiotics may also be prescribed to prevent complication.

Hand injuries caused by animal bites are very common with children, especially during walks to and from school," says Dr. Scott Sagerman of Hand Surgery Associates. "If not treated properly, animal bites can lead to serious infections." In case of injury, seek medical attention immediately.

Hand Surgery Associates, S.C. is a medical organization dedicated to the treatment of injuries and conditions affecting the upper extremity, including the hand, wrist, elbow, and shoulder.

Lake Forest Place opens newest continuing care community

Lake Forest Place, the newest continuing care community in Northern Illinois, officially opened Oct. 3. There was a reception followed by a ribbon cutting.

The retirement community is the venture of the not-for-profit Presbyterian Homes, a well-respected provider of innovative health care and residential options for seniors.

Built on 49 acres in Lake County, Lake Forest Place features attractive, spacious cottages and apartments in a home-like setting. With an emphasis on independence, offers assisted living and skilled nursing care for those residents who need it.

"It is the single largest project to receive zoning approval in Lake Forest," explained Peter Mulvey, president/CEO of Presbyterian Homes. "It is a prime example of the national trend called 'the cooling of the Sun Belt' as increasing numbers of retirees opt for northern areas over traditional sunny locations. At Lake Forest Place, 85 percent of our residents come from the neighboring communities."

"About 10 years ago, we identified an unprecedented need on the North Shore for this type of retirement community. Although we have years of experience and a successful track record in the retirement business, we did not move forward until a market research study showed we also had strong, positive name recognition in Lake Forest," added Mulvey.

The focal point of Lake Forest Place is a 90,000 sq. ft. town center featuring a restaurant, private rooms for special events, indoor swimming pool and health club, library, lecture hall/community rooms, secure underground parking, gift shop, craft/hobby shops and barber/beauty salon.

Lake Forest Place offers two independent living options that include 82 cottages and 168 one and two bedroom apartments. For individuals who require assistance, but do not need medical or nursing care, there are 30 assisted living studios and one bedroom apartments.

There is 24-hour health care coverage, daily non-emergency, outpatient care and short term assistance for minor illnesses. A medical director and geriatric-trained nurses are on staff. There is also a 56-bed licensed Nursing Care Center and an Alzheimer Unit.

Antioch skull discovery hints at past century

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

A human male skull fragment was found in Antioch during North Avenue excavations to install new municipal water pipes.

Examination by an Illinois State Police anthropologist suggests the fragment may be 100 years or more old, but a specific date was not determined.

The skull bone fragment has been turned over to the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency in Springfield, Illinois.

Equipment operator Rick Smith and Foreman Kenneth Kattner, of Thelen Sand and Gravel, were digging a trench for new water mains on North Avenue a half mile west of Route 83 on Saturday, Aug. 8 at approximately 11 a.m., according to Antioch Police Chief Charles Watkins.

"When they got about four feet down on the south side of the road, they found (part of) a human skull," Watkins said. It was stuck in the clay on the side of the trench being dug.

"We dug about 10 or 15 feet in the remainder of the area," said Watkins. However, no additional pieces of bone could be found.

Watkins described the fragment as that of the brow or forehead area of a person's skull. The shape of the skull suggested that it was extremely old.

Watkins said that the Lake County Coroner's Office took possession of the skull for further investigation that afternoon.

Deputy Coroner J. R. Halek said that the partial bone fragment was sent to the Illinois State Police Forensics Division.

"It was examined by Mark E. Jonsey," Halek said. Jonsey is an anthropologist with the state police.

Jonsey determined that it was an almost complete human frontal bone of a skull fragment. It was approximately four inches by four inches in size with a small hump in the area over the eyes. This and other characteristics are traits typical of male skulls.

"Accordingly, the sex of the individual is determined to be male," Halek said.

The race of the individual was not determined.

The suture pattern of the bones suggest that this was an adult, but no further age assessment was performed.

Eroded portions of part of the skull helped to date it as 100 years old or older.

It is likely that the bone has not been at that location the entire time. Instead, it was probably part of a load of fill material brought to that location 30 years ago when the road was upgraded to design standards of that time period.

"We turned it over to the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency," said Halek. State historians will hold the fragment.

Native Americans may wish to claim the bone and conduct a burial for it in accordance with their cultural traditions.

No homicide investigation was undertaken by the Antioch Police Department.

Eat well and support a charity at Chef's Auction

By JOHN KMITTA
Staff Reporter

Romantic evenings, exquisite food and catered parties are just some items to be auctioned off at the Lake County Chef's Auction.

The auction, a fundraiser for the March of Dimes, got ready by holding a kick-off party Monday night at Mickey Finn's in Libertyville.

The kick-off brought together chefs from the 20 area establishments which will be participating in this year's auction on Nov. 1.

The auction, to be held at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, will offer samples of food from all the chefs involved. There will be live and silent auctions.

The live auction packages include: a dinner theater package at Marriott's Lincolnshire King's Wharf restaurant; a cocktail party for 25 from Silver Spoon Emporium & Catering; dinner for 10 and a brewery tour from Mickey Finn's; dinner for six from Buona Sera Cucina Italiana; and a house party from The Weber Grill.

For the house party package Chef Randy Waidner will come to the high bidder's home to demonstrate proper cooking techniques while preparing dinner for six on a brand new Weber Performer grill. At the end of the evening the grill is the bidder's to keep.

This will be the third year of the event. The first year the event raised $10,000, last year $20,000, this year the goal is $26,000 said Kim Kaczmarek, Special Events Director for March of Dimes.

That number should not be too far out of reach, because the first year attendance was approximately 120, last year 250 and this year the fundraiser is ready to accommodate 300 people.

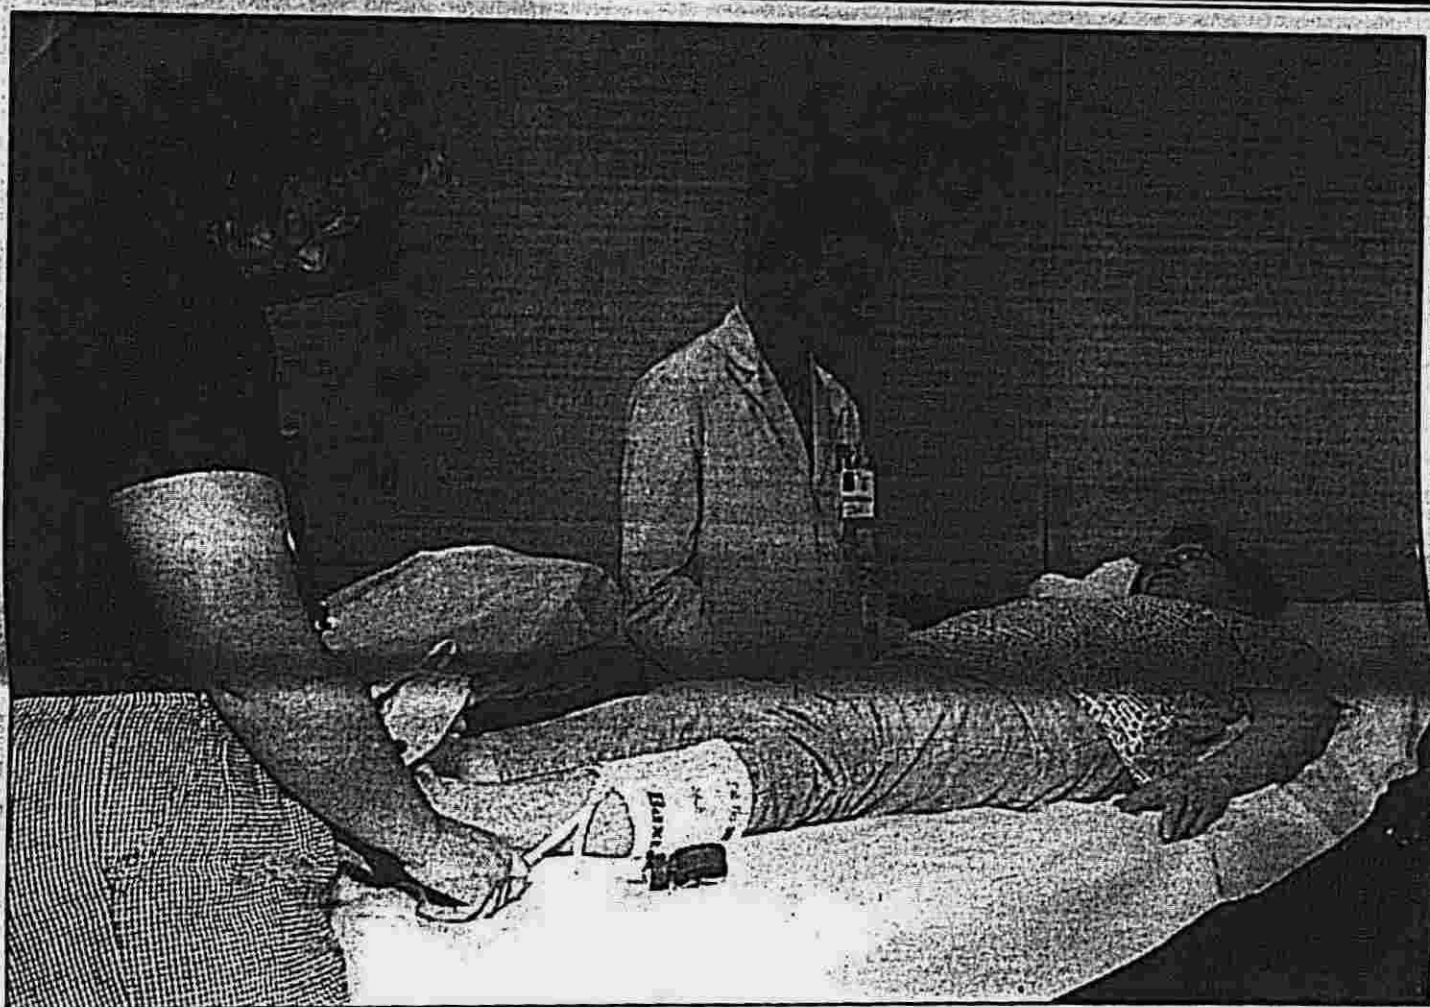

"We're trying harder to get more people involved," said Kathy Chambers, a volunteer for the fundraiser.

Adele Nagel, also a volunteer, said she and her husband became involved in the event because they believe in the goals of the charity but also because the event is so much fun.

The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation raises money to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects. They do so through community services, advocacy, research and education.

Food for the event will be served from 3 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. and the live auction will run from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Tickets for the event are $40 in advance or $45 at the door. The cost of admission covers the array of food which will be provided. Chambers said to just think of it as buying dinner for yourself and enjoy.

Runyard offers six point plan

Democrat hopes to win sheriff's office

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Managing Editor

Marlene Runyard believes the Lake County Sheriff's office needs a strategic operation plan and better utilization of technology to increase the effectiveness of law enforcement in Lake County.

"A plan needs to be developed with input from all communities and their agencies to work together and avoid duplicating services," said Runyard, a 19-year veteran of the Waukegan Police Department. "It is not about becoming the chief of police of Lake County, it is creating partnerships between communities."

According to Runyard, the current plan for deployment of county squads has changed little since the 1960s, while the population center of Lake County has changed dramatically.

"There are many county roads that are in the jurisdiction of Lake County Sheriff, but with better cooperation and the use of technology, the sheriff's department and municipal departments can work together to provide better service," she said.

Runyard believes the county needs to conduct a needs assessment of agencies to determine areas of duplication or shortages.

Runyard also feels the sheriff's department should make available to local law enforcement and authorized agencies current and accurate information via the Internet. These secure on-line services would include: on-line access to arrest warrants and orders of protection, on-line mapping of incidents, crime trends and the Lake County jails inmate manifest.

Runyard had been calling for the sex offenders list to be put on-line since early August. Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re made that information available on-line last week.

"I think my campaign stimulated them into action on that," she said. "I hoped to be a catalyst for that type of response."

She is also calling for the development and implementation of a comprehensive domestic violence plan, victim notification program and the establishment of a gang unit and a victim services unit.

"These are specific proposals designed to expand the duties and focus of the Sheriff's office," Runyard said. "The trends in crime and law enforcement requires the Sheriff's office to respond to these changes."

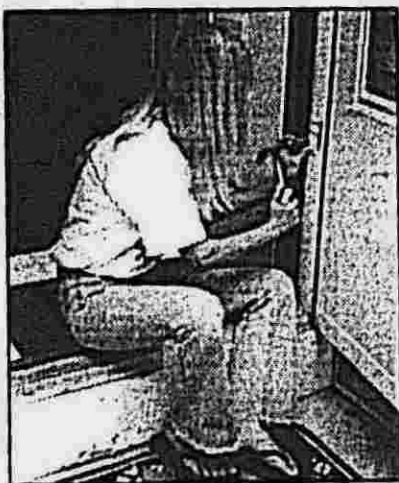

Runyard is currently assigned to Waukegan's patrol division as a shift supervisor. She holds the rank of lieutenant. She was the first female hired as a Waukegan patrol officer.

Her previous assignments include: patrol officer, division commander for community services, deputy chief of support services. She was appointed to the Lake County Major Crimes Task Forces as an investigator in February of 1998.

Fire badly damages restaurant

Wauconda—Wyncourt Restaurant has been closed due to a large fire which totally destroyed its basement and damaged the first floor.

Approximately 60 firefighters from Wauconda and 14 other departments extinguished the fire of Sept. 30, which Wauconda Fire Department was alerted to at 2:59 p.m. from a 911 call, and arrived at the scene at 26400 N. Rand Rd. at 3:02 p.m. The fire started in a basement office for yet undetermined reasons, and spread into areas where all the stock for the bar and restaurant was kept in coolers and storage rooms was kept, said Lt. William Hoover of Wauconda Fire Department. "All of that was lost," Hoover said.

No employees or customers were injured, however the restaurant suffered approximately $150,000 in damages, the basement was totally destroyed and the main floor was severely damaged after a hole was cut through to fight the fire, Hoover said. Wyncourt owner George Gavas could not be reached for comment. The restaurant is closed under the authority of the Lake County Building and Zoning Department. It has been in business for approximately 30 years.

Woman leads police on chase

Mundelein—Police want to know why a woman who was driving with a baby in her car refused to pull over for a traffic stop earlier this week, authorities said. The woman evaded the officer at 1:15 p.m. Oct. 6, and led police on a chase through the village and Libertyville, escaping arrest after abandoning her car, a late 1980s Oldsmobile four door, on Route 176 east of I-294, authorities said.

The chase began after a Mundelein police officer attempted to pull her over on Route 45 and Division Street for traveling 45 mph in a 30 mph zone, police said. The car pulled into the entrance of McDonald's Restaurant, 151 N. Lake St., and proceeded to speed through the parking lot, exiting onto Seymour Avenue, traveling northbound through a red light at Seymour and Division, with the officer in hot pursuit, authorities said.

Libertyville police assisted in the pursuit by placing stop sticks on Route 176 at Butterfield Road to puncture the tires of the car, authorities said. They abandoned the pursuit after the car continued on with two punctured tires. The car was recovered by the tollway authority on Route 176 just east of I-94. Police believe the woman pretended to be in need of assistance, and was picked up by a trucker. Anyone with information about the incident is encouraged to call Mundelein police at 949-3250.

Brook wetland workshop Saturday

Antioch—Community residents are invited to participate in an education and field workshop at the downtown Brook wetland sanctuary on Saturday morning.

This will be the first such large community program at the restoration project since Earth Day in 1996.

"I think there's going to be good participation," said Community Development Director Claude LeMere. "It will be very interesting."

Volunteers have been invited to learn about invasive species and to help remove them from the downtown wetland sanctuary area on Saturday, Oct. 10 at 9 a.m.

Dr. John Larson, of Applied Ecological Services, Inc., will conduct the seminar in the William E. Brook Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center. It will be about invasive species with a practical demonstration of wetland improvement techniques in a workshop session. Participants are to meet at the entrance to the wetland area at Orchard and Skidmore streets.

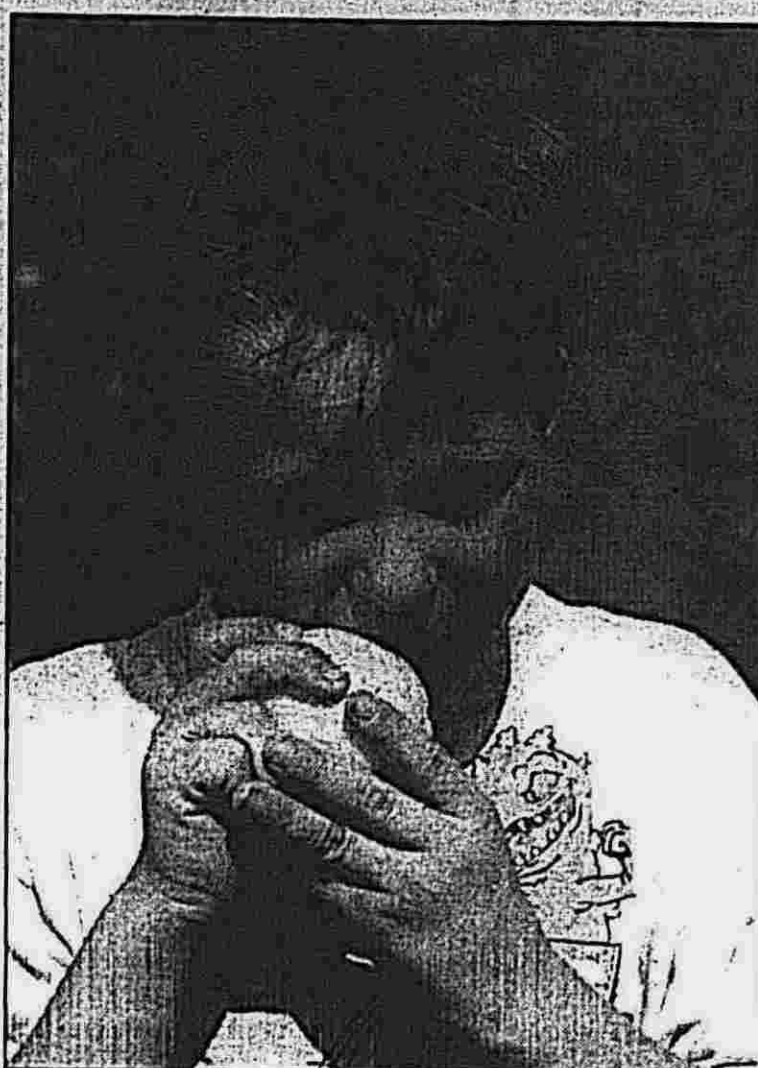

Additional information about the Saturday seminar and field workshop is available at 847-395-6342.

Man charged with sexual assault

Fox Lake—Norman Gibson, 32, of 2442 N. Midlothian Road in Lake Zurich pleaded guilty to two counts of aggravated criminal sexual assault in a Lake County Courtroom on Aug. 28, officials said.

According to Fox Lake Police Chief Ed Gerretsen, Gibson was arrested in January following an investigation by Fox Lake Police that proved Gibson was having sexual encounters with a 14 year old girl.

"The incidents occurred for 10 to 15 times over one year," Gerretsen said. The parents brought the child forward after the girl realized that was happening was wrong."

Gibson was arrested after the girl came forward for aggravated criminal sexual assault on that day.

"The investigators did a great job in reaching a successful conclusion to this case," Gerretsen said. "I'm glad to see justice was done in the end."

Decomposed body found

Libertyville—The badly decomposed body of a man was found last Friday in unincorporated Lake County, he had a bullet wound to his skull.

The Lake County Sheriff's department, with the help of the Lake County Coroner, have begun an investigation into the identity of the man.

It is difficult to determine how long the man has been deceased because of the severely decomposed state of the remains, said Lake County Coroner Barbara Richardson, but most likely he has been dead for one or two months.

The remains are of an adult Caucasian male. There has been some disagreement over his approximate age, Richardson said. The pathologist estimated the man to be somewhere between 20 and 30 years old. The dentist however estimated the man to be in his forties, she said.

The body was found 7 to 10 feet from a residential driveway off of River Road, and was discovered by one of the residents with access to the driveway, Richardson said. The body was approximately 472 feet from River Road and was lying on top of a piece of wire fence which was lying on the ground.

River Road is a North/South road between Libertyville and Waukegan connecting Route 120 and Route 137.

Cost of wetland yields investigation

Libertyville—A bid by the State to Libertyville Township for a small piece of unbuildable wetland has led to a request by the Township for an appraisal.

The State of Illinois wants to buy one half acre of Open Space land to widen route 45. Because the area is wetland the State offered $2,250.

The transaction itself would not cause controversy because the State's urgent need to expand the road coupled with their right of Eminent Domain, gives the State the ability to claim the land no matter what. The offer by the State however has caused the Township Board to investigate a similar issue more thoroughly.

Trustee Lynn Moran said the situation is a moot point because the State is going to take the land either way. "They know what they are doing and they know what the land is worth," she said.

Township Board Supervisor F.T. "Mike" Graham said if the State's offer is a fair offer then their is a real ethical problem with the purchase by the previous board.

Moran voted against hiring an appraiser saying the State knows what the land is worth and Graham is just spending taxpayers money. Despite her dissent the Board voted to hire the appraiser to determine the cost of the land. They expect results of the appraisal in a couple of weeks.

Osmond receives community award

Antioch—Timothy H. Osmond was named recipient of the Antioch Rotary Club Community Service Award Saturday, Oct. 3.

The announcement and award presentation was made by Stan Livermore on behalf of the club. "In keeping with our commitment to service above self, for some years now, the Antioch Rotary Club has chosen to recognize an outstanding giving member of our community with this distinction," said Livermore.

Osmond has served with active involvement in the Antioch Lions Club, Ducks Unlimited, the Lakes Region Historical Society, the Village of Antioch Arbor Day program, the Northern Illinois Conservation Club, and the Antioch Republican Club.

"He is perhaps most known for his 20 years of service as a volunteer paramedic with the Antioch Rescue Squad," Livermore said. For two of those years of service, Osmond was Chief of the squad.

Osmond is Antioch Township Supervisor. He is presently seeking office for District 62 of the House of Representatives

Pilates method taught locally

Lake Villa—A very old form of body conditioning that has become popular in recent years is now taught in the Lake Villa area.

The Pilates exercise method is intended both for people who wish to build strength as part of a therapy program or who prefer to use it for body conditioning. The method is taught by Cathie Derer-McCue in Lake Villa. She also operates the Derer Academy of Dance.

"Pilates is an exercise method that is 80 years old," Derer-McCue said. "What's great about Pilates is it is without question wonderful for everyone."

Pilates is promoted as a recovery program from injuries. It uses a precise system of exercise rehabilitation.

Derer-McCue has been interested in body movement from an early age. She established the Derer Academy of Dance in Wauconda and Lake Zurich, and has now moved her studio to Lake Villa.

Area pit stops get renovations

Round Lake Beach—McDonald's on Rollins Road lost a drive-through, while 7-Eleven gained one on one rainy October morning.

These sudden renovations were the result of two separate incidents, both on Rollins Road in Round Lake Beach.

The first mishap occurred at 6:40 a.m. on Oct. 6. According to police reports, a resident parked his 1989 Oldsmobile Coupe in front of the 7-Eleven at 803 W. Rollins Road.

Apparently the man thought he had put the vehicle in park.

The vehicle was still in drive when the man accidentally hit the accelerator, plunging the car over the curb and into the two large front plate glass windows of the convenience store.

The officer on the scene said the vehicle went completely through the window all the way up to the back tires. The car knocked out the row of shelves against the window as well as a shelf of dry goods one row over. Damage to the foundation under the plate glass window also occurred. A damage estimate was not available.

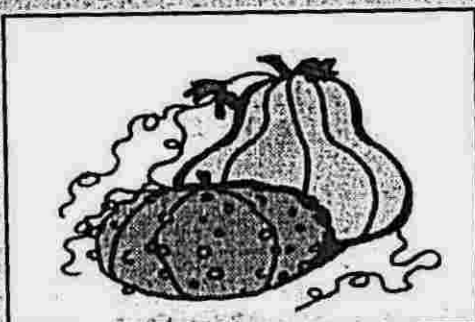

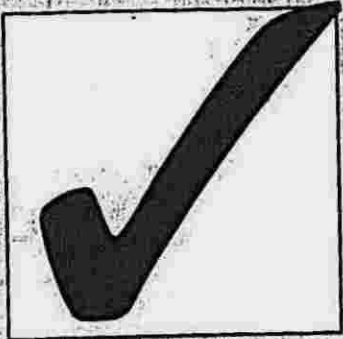

"The only thing that stopped it was the brick wall," said Round Lake Beach police officer Dennis Ziulek.

Fitzgerald and Salvi: for today, tomorrow

Two youthful Republicans provide Illinois voters in the Nov. 3 election an early start on putting into office exceptional new leaders for the millennium.

Peter Fitzgerald, running for the U.S. Senate, and Al Salvi, nominee for secretary of state, are not yet 40, but their experience and clear thinking on issues confronting the nation and Illinois today surpasses their youth.

Individually and together, Salvi and Fitzgerald offer a bright and productive future for their party as well as all Illinois.

Honing their political skills as members of the Illinois General Assembly, Fitzgerald in the State Senate and Salvi in the House, both have experienced bumps along the political trail. Despite an expensive and hard-hitting campaign, Fitzgerald was defeated in an attempt four years ago to succeed venerable Congressman Phil Crane.

Salvi, also knows the taste of defeat, losing in a bid in 1996 for the U.S. Senate due as much to his own campaign mistakes as the miraculous reformation of his opponent from a mushy liberal to a centrist moderate.

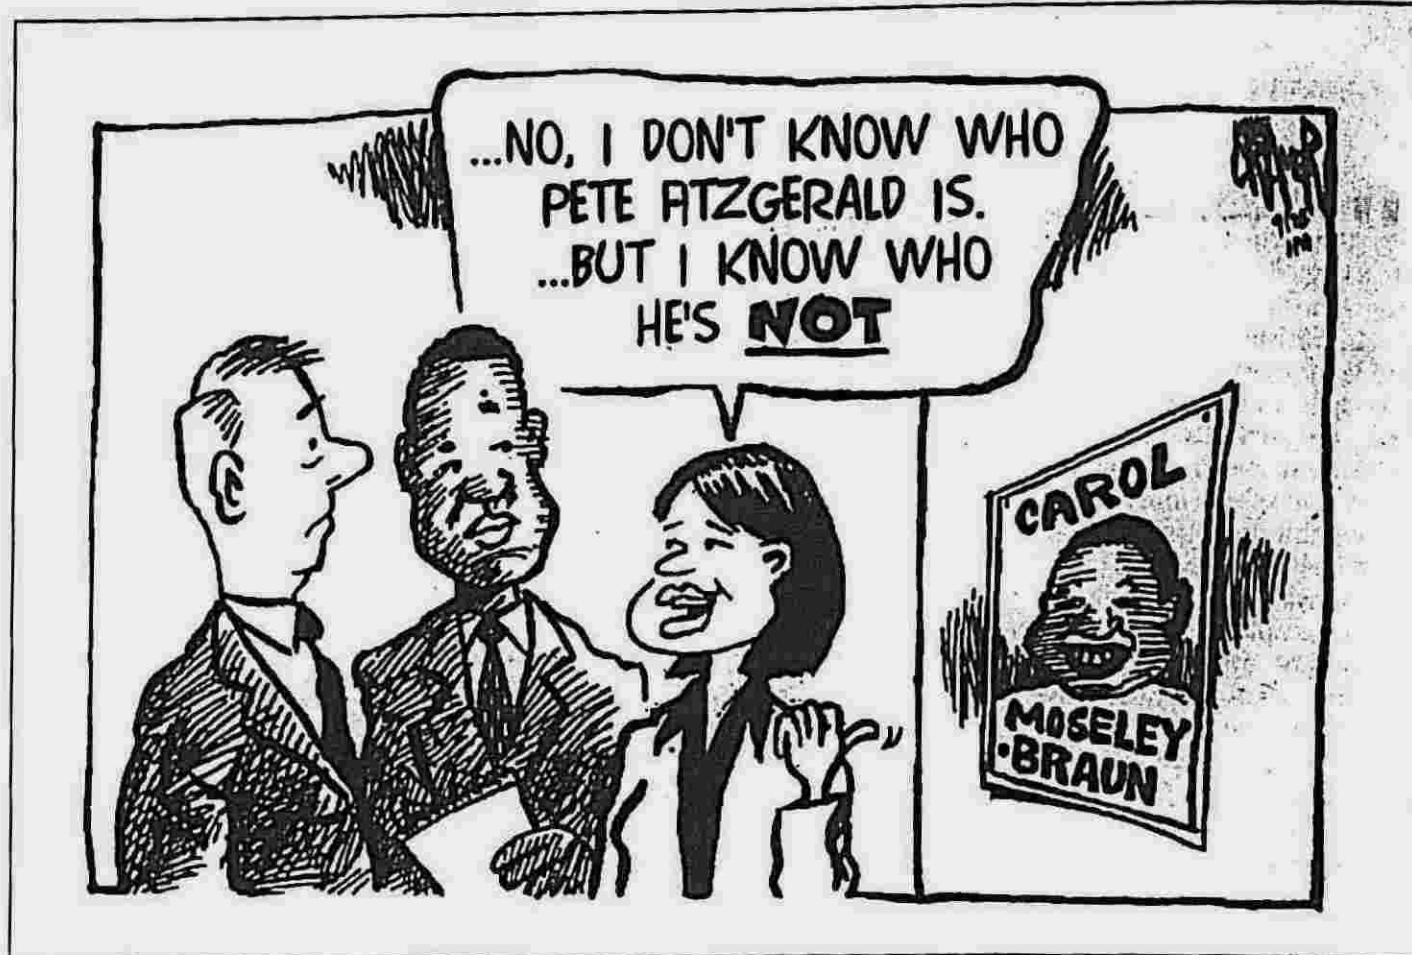

Salvi and Fitzgerald are unabashed conservatives, unwavering in their stands to downsize government, reduce taxes and oppose so-called "middle of the road" stands accommodating easier abortion. As for the hot-button issue all candidates for high office must address—gun control—we believe both Fitzgerald and Salvi have worthy positions without caving in to either extreme. Call this pragmatic politics, but it unquestionably represents mainstream thinking of the citizenry. Both support the Brady Bill.

If he is elected to join the Republican majority in the U.S. Senate, Fitzgerald would immediately become a strong voice calling for federal tax reduction. The resident of neighboring Cook County sees reducing the tax burden as a big boost for parents raising children. We don't see his opponent, incumbent U.S. Senator Carol Moseley-Braun, as a party-line Democrat, supporting true tax relief under any circumstance.

We are convinced that Lake County native Al Salvi, born and raised in Lake Zurich and now a resident of Wauconda, will more than carry on the rich Republican tradition of outstanding husbandry of the office that touches the lives of more Illinois residents than any other elective position. Salvi has advanced a sparkling agenda of initiatives to continue the battle against drunk driving, monitor convicted sex offenders and make the secretary of state's office more accessible, particularly to senior citizens. Almost amazingly, Salvi's opponent, a career hanger-on and product of the Cook County Democratic machine, has yet to advance any meaningful plans for the office he seeks. And election day is less than a month away.

Resolute, honest, dedicated; the two Republicans are men of principal and upholders of traditional American family values. Fitzgerald and Salvi address issues with honesty and integrity. They are upfront with their views.

Because of their youth and personal wealth, liberal-leaning critics in the media like to depict the two suburban residents as greedy for power and overly ambitious. The media critics are dead wrong! In our opinion Peter Fitzgerald and Al Salvi are needed as leaders for both today and tomorrow. We recommend them to you. They have our hearty endorsement.

VIEWPOINT

History repeating; only names changing

There aren't enough votes. There simply aren't enough votes.

A high ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee viewed unfolding events. Feverish effort is exerted to ward off impeachment proceedings against the President of the United States being initiated by members of the opposing party.

The U.S. Representative, weighing political considerations against an oath to uphold the Constitution, relayed his findings to Capitol Hill aides. Staff personnel glumly took the information to party seniors in Congress who concluded that the proper course of action was for the President to resign.

The scenario sounds like fresh news. Actually the events took place more than two decades ago.

Doris McClory, whose late husband, Robert, served with distinction in Congress for nearly 20 years after representing Lake County in both the Illinois House and Senate, recalled the turbulent days in Washington, D.C. leading up to Richard Nixon's vacating the presidency to end what history has recorded as the Watergate Era. Bob McClory was the Republican voice on the Judiciary Committee.

Similarities between the end of the Nixon presidency and the nation's agony over Bill Clinton's scandalous conduct in the Oval Office underscores a political truth that history has a cynical and repetitive side.

"Bob knew Republicans didn't have the votes to save Nixon from impeachment proceedings," related Mrs. McClory. She mused how Democrat members of the Judiciary Committee must be struggling with similar political realities involving their shamed President as did Republicans during the Watergate scandal.

History records that Senators. Barry Goldwater and Hugh Cross, and minority leader in the House minority leader John Rhodes were among the group of GOP seniors who meet with Nixon, telling him that his Presidency could not be saved, that the honorable thing to do would be to resign. It fell to Bob McClory to sponsor two articles of impeachment.

Ms. McClory spoke with us during one of her regular Illinois visits. The trips enable her to enjoy late summer weather from a condominium apartment in Gurnee. She keeps abreast of Lake County politics. The exhilaration of the fall campaign is like a tonic.

Mystery 'double'

This doesn't sound too good for Glenn Poshard, the Democrat nominee for governor who is trying to overtake Secretary of State George Ryan. On the golf course the other day, I followed a twosome containing a political look alike. Was this Candidate Poshard getting a break from the campaign grind?

There was the trademark Poshard mustache. The familiar white, rumpled curly hair. At the fifth hole, we wound up at the same tee.

I decided to pop the question. Are you Glenn Poshard? I ventured. "Nope," replied the golfer with a who-in-heck-is-he look. I pressed on. "How many times a day are you mistaken for Glenn Poshard?

The golfer's expression remained puzzled. "Never, really. What's this all about?" the stranger inquired in annoyed tones. "He's running for governor and you look a lot like him," I explained. The Poshard double gave me a "Get lost" look and bent over to tee up. His silence spoke volumes. So much for campaign "research." I'd say Glenn Poshard is in trouble trying to get elected governor. Lots of trouble.

Big band bash

Friday, Oct. 23, is sure to be an eye—and ear—opener at College of Lake County for jazz fans and lovers of big band music. At 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Building Mainstage Theatre at on the Grayslake campus, CLC's two jazz ensembles will be joined by youthful jazz enthusiasts from Highland Middle School, Libertyville, and Highland Park High School. There'll even be a guest artist, trumpeter Doug Beach who also directs jazz studies at Elmhurst College. Sounds like quite an evening of music and admission is free.

Just a thought

For those Americans prone to giving President Clinton high marks for the job he is doing, strikes me that some other historic figures enjoyed healthy job approval ratings at certain points in their careers. Al Capone, Adolph Hitler, Josef Stalin.

One man's family

The two youngest grandchildren are experimenting with speech. Both Alexandra and Nicole offer a pretty good, "Mama" and "Dahdah." Lately, Nicole has enhanced her vocabulary with a clear and emphatic "no." Not a bad start and a pretty good word for a girl to keep at the ready as she wends her way through the growing up years.

Judges says thanks to jurors

By RAYMOND MCKOSKI
Chief Judge

Every year approximately 7,000 citizens set aside important business, personal and family responsibilities, to report for jury service in Lake County. Americans for more than 200 years have been making these same sacrifices in order to insure that our judicial system remains the finest in the world.

For too long, the hard work, sacrifice and dedication of jurors has gone unrecognized. However, the service of jurors to our nation has not gone unnoticed by the judges. The judiciary is acutely aware that without jurors the legal system as we know it could not exist, and that without our legal system, our democracy could not exist.

"Jury Service Appreciation Week" was established by the Lake County judges as a way of recognizing the vital contribution of all past, present and future jurors to our system of justice. Although other counties have created jury appreciation days or weeks, our celebration differs in that we emphasize the essential role of the individual citizen-juror rather than the constitutional amendments that create the right to a jury trial. While the importance of the words of the Sixth and Seventh Amendments creating the right to a jury can not be overstated, we in the Lake County chose to honor the people that give life to the written word. Without the willing service of our citizens as jurors

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Republicans remembering Hess

When a group of attorneys gathered at the posh Merit Club, Libertyville, to get better acquainted with Linda Hess (that means bring money) there were more Republicans than Democrats in attendance.

Chuck Smith, president of the local legal fraternity, told fellow barristers: "We didn't appreciate Linda Hess until she no longer was our county clerk." All along, Hess has maintained she's getting lots of Republican help to reclaim the office she vacated voluntarily in 1994. GOP lawyers at the Merit Club reportedly did not disappoint her.

Hess on Helander

Linda Hess has pulled off the gloves in her battle to unseat County Clerk Willard Helander, describing the Republican's first term as "fleecing" the voters and "rewriting history" regarding Hess' record during 12 years in office. The Hess campaign pitch: "Helander's management style has created chaos and controversy in the clerk's office; her personal style is brusque and impersonal."

Hess quotes a prominent attorney's complaint of being "treated like trash" in the clerk's office. The Democrat challenger describes the way citizens are greeted now in the clerk's office as "Gestapo-like." Heavy stuff. Election day must be getting close.

With two Mundelein trustees and a department official on the mend, the rest of the village's elected and appointed officials may want to take extra care before their names are added to the list of the walking wounded around village hall.

Trustee Duane R. Dudek is recuperating from a leg injury suffered in a motorcycle accident last month, while Trustee Ira Kosova is healing from a recent hernia operation, and Building Commissioner Bill Randall is continuing his duties despite having his left hand wrapped up in a cast and bandage, after breaking it during a basketball game.

McHenry battle

The unthinkable is happening in McHenry County. Republicans are coming to the support of a popular Wonder Lake Democratic attorney, Jack Franks, to unseat State Rep. Mike Brown, who holds the 63rd District legislative seat through appointment to fill a vacancy.

Once staunch GOP voters are reportedly disenchanted with Brown's allegiance to Old Guard Republican leadership. An example of the closeness of this race is that Brown and Frank split the endorsement of two powerful teachers' unions. Brown is pleading with Republican voters not to punish him for the actions of others.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Willard professional, helpful

Usually a positive letter does not seem to get published, but nevertheless I felt compelled to try. A few years back, we had a tragedy in our family necessitating the services of our coroner Barbara Richardson.

It was a very difficult time for my family, and I can only tell you that Barbara is one of the finest professionals I've ever met.

Imagine my delight to see that she is chairman of the re-elect Willard Helander for Lake County Clerk, campaign. We are fortunate to have both of these very professional, lovely women working for us. I guess it is true, "Birds of a feather."

Hess will bring personal touch back

Writers in support of Lake County Clerk Willard Helander do recognize the computerization and On-line implementation of the office. They fail to mention that the preparedness for this came at the end of Linda Hess' term when she decided to make a career move. Don't forget, the county itself was gearing up for the "computer change." Four years ago, how many of us even knew what a "web site" was? Such a change was a realistic change of the times, and there will be even more radical changes in the future.

During Linda Hess' four year hiatus into the world of financial investment, she learned the latest developments in management. The public can rest assured that Linda Hess is "up to the times." She always worked to improve the county clerk's office and she will continue to do so. By the way, you can also rest assured that Linda Hess will make improvements at the least possible cost to the taxpayers.

Some of us get weary of "hitting seven buttons" to get a voice message. Modernization is great and more of it is coming, but let's remember the "human touch" too. Linda Hess as Lake County clerk will treat you that way.

Let's keep Willard there

I have been an election judge for many years and have the upmost respect for Willard. She has always been in our corner. When we have an idea, opinion or concern all we have to do is pick up the phone and she is always ready to listen.

Willard is especially compassionate to our senior judges and goes out of her way to accommodate them.

I have been so impressed with her training sessions and with the fact she recruited 800 new election workers.

We judges as well as the voters are glad there are two locations for ballot counting to end the historic late night results.

Connie Brown

Sign of the times

Political candidates are preached over and over again that they can't campaign at and around polling places. Yet, Willard Helander, the chief election official of the county, when voters come to the county clerk's office to vote absentee, has certificates of recognition hanging on the wall closely within sight of the voters.

With her name on these certificates, isn't that a form of political campaigning while persons are voting?

Most public officials keep such certificates, plaques, and honorabilia in their personal offices. It is all right for her to display them there, if she wishes, but I believe that it is out of place and surely in violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of the law by displaying her name in such a way where citizens are voting, and she is a candidate on that ballot.

After all, the chief election official should set the example for other candidates to follow.

Fitzgerald right for our times

As a wife of a veteran, I cannot support Carol Moseley-Braun for U.S. Senate. Her opponent, Peter Fitzgerald, has consistently supported protecting the American flag from being burned and desecrated. Moseley-Braun amazingly has opposed any attempt to prohibit such conduct. People who burn flags do not express a political viewpoint. They disgrace the essence of our national identity and the people who have fought and died to protect it.

Moseley-Braun not only shows disdain for the men and women who have died for our flag. She also ignores the need of living military personnel protecting our country. Moseley-Braun has voted against pay raises for U.S. servicemen and women. Even though sons have needed food stamps to feed their families and although Carol Moseley-Braun has voted to send our troops to dangerous places like Somalia, she refuses to support additional funding for life saving training and equipment which is needed to prepare these troops for combat.

The time is now for a new Senator and Peter Fitzgerald shows a greater sensitivity to the needs of the people protecting our country. Peter Fitzgerald deserves our support for our next U.S. Senator.

The sappy science of naming pets

This is just a guess, but I don't imagine many pet owners these days are naming their new dogs or cats Clinton or Monica. Those pet names probably have fallen out of favor just as the previously cute and acceptable name O.J. did a couple of years ago.

But, lo and behold, the name of President Clinton's daughter, Chelsea, is popular among pet owners. There are 179 Chelseas among the 70,000 dogs and cats currently registered at the Lake County Animal-Rabies Control office in Mundelein.

Among the other most popular names in that mammoth listing are Snickers, 178 of them, and Dusty and Mickey, 170 each.

Also among the favorites are 157 Cleos, the name of Linda Tripp's dog. (No, there are no Lake County pets named Creep, Tripp's and Monica Lewinsky's nickname for Clinton.)

I think it's safe to say pet owners latched onto Chelsea because that's been the name of our nation's likable First Daughter for several years — not because the name Chelsea has enjoyed fame as a literary and artistic borough of London.

Many pet owners like to give their animals human appellations; among the most popular for females are Annie, Rosie, Sophie, Ashley, Goldie, Gracie and Dixie.

For male pets, popular names in these parts include Alex, Oscar, Fritz, Fred, Reggie, George, Milo, Jasper and Sammy. And now we can expect Sammy, as in Sosa, to suddenly soar in popularity. Not to mention McGwire.

I'll never forget my first two cats, adopted long ago. Pondering names for them, a friend suggested Chester and Esther, and that's who they became.

Sometimes it's better to be lucky than good when it comes to naming pets. Back in the 1970s, when our family decided to adopt our first puppy, we answered an ad and picked one up at a nearby farm. The minute we got the little rascal in the car, we began the scenario: "Let's name her this, let's name her that, let's name her ..."

"Wait," someone said. "Let's think about it for a few days and we'll name her on Sunday."

Meanwhile, my wife took the dog to a vet for some shots.

"What's the dog's name?" asked the receptionist. "We're going to name her Sunday," said Janice.

"That's a good idea," said the receptionist. So our dog became Sunday, a loving and lovable pet for 13 years.

Now we have our second dog, a male named Monday.

Owners often name their pets after celebrities. In the long list provided by Len Hackl, our county's chief animal warden, there are 127 Jordans, 63 Elvises and 59 Rambos.

Pets named after sweets are common, such as Snickers, Oreo, Sugar, Peaches, Pumpkin, Cinnamon and Hershey.

Pet names also have been inspired by characters in the smash-hit musical "Cats," such as Rum Tum Tugger, Grizabella, Bustopher Jones and Rumpelteazer.

This has been a long list but it wouldn't be complete without two of my favorites: A friend calls his feline Zippy the Wonder Cat; and my niece Kim, because she yelled it so often at her new kitten, decided to name him Stop It!

COMMENTARY: Judge recognizes work of jury service the constitutional right would have no meaning.

Jurors are essential to a democracy for many reasons. The most often cited reasons are that jurors stand between the power of the government and the accused and that the collective wisdom of 12 everyday citizens will almost always lead to the correct decision. A less frequently mentioned, yet equally important, reason why jurors are so essential is that the judicial branch of government is the only branch of government where ordinary citizens are the direct decision-makers. Jurors make the decisions for the judicial branch of government. In the legislative and executive branches, citizens do not directly make decisions but rather elect people who make the decisions for them. It is very important the citizens directly make governmental decisions in at least one branch of government and that branch is the judicial branch.

More than two centuries of experience has demonstrated that jurors are an integral part of our system of justice and our democracy. No one knows this better, or appreciates this more, than the judges. The judges ask everyone to join in applauding past, present and future jurors for their dedication and commitment to the ideal of justice.

Thank you jurors.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Pursuant to law public notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution will be submitted to the Electors of the State of Illinois for adoption or rejection at the General Election to be held on November 3, 1998. (Proposed changes in the existing constitutional provisions are indicated by underscoring new matter and by striking all matter to be deleted.)

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SECTION 15 OF ARTICLE VI THE JUDICIARY

SECTION 15. RETIREMENT - DISCIPLINE

(a) The General Assembly may provide by law for the retirement of Judges and Associate Judges at a prescribed age. Any retired Judge or Associate Judge, with his or her consent, may be assigned by the Supreme Court to judicial service for which he or she shall receive the applicable compensation in lieu of retirement benefits. A retired Associate Judge may be assigned only as an Associate Judge.

(b) A Judicial Inquiry Board is created. The Supreme Court shall select two Circuit Judges as members and the Governor shall appoint four persons who are not lawyers and three lawyers as members of the Board. No more than two of the lawyers and two of the non-lawyers appointed by the Governor shall be members of the same political party. The terms of Board members shall be four years. A vacancy on the Board shall be filled for a full term in the manner the original appointment was made. No member may serve on the Board more than eight years.

(c) The Board shall be convened permanently, with authority to conduct investigations, receive or initiate complaints concerning a Judge or Associate Judge, and file complaints with the courts commission. The Board shall not file a complaint unless five members believe that a reasonable basis exists (1) to charge the Judge or Associate Judge with willful misconduct in office, persistent failure to perform his duties, or other conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice or that brings the judicial office into disrepute, or (2) to charge that the Judge or Associate Judge is physically or mentally unable to perform his duties. All proceedings of the Board shall be confidential except the filing of a complaint with the Courts Commission. The Board shall prosecute the complaint.

(d) The Board shall adopt rules governing its procedures. It shall have subpoena power and authority to appoint and direct its staff. Members of the Board who are not Judges shall receive per diem compensation and necessary expenses; members who are Judges shall receive necessary expenses only. The General Assembly by law shall appropriate funds for the operation of the Board.

(e) An independent Courts Commission is created consisting of one Supreme Court Judge selected by that Court as a member and one as an alternate, who shall be its chairman, two Appellate Court Judges selected by that Court as members and three as alternates, and two Circuit Judges selected by the Supreme Court as members and three as alternates, and two citizens selected by the Governor as members and two as alternates. Members and alternates who are Appellate Court Judges must each be from a different judicial district. Members and Alternates who are Circuit Judges must each be from a different Judicial District. Members and alternates of the Commission shall not be members of the Judicial Inquiry Board. The members of the Commission shall select a chairperson to serve a two-year term.

The Commission shall be convened permanently to hear complaints filed by the Judicial Inquiry Board. The Commission shall have authority after notice and public hearing, (1) to remove from office, suspend without pay, censure or reprimand a Judge or Associate Judge for willful misconduct in office, persistent failure to perform his or her duties, or other conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice or that brings the judicial office into disrepute, or (2) to suspend, with or without pay, or retire a Judge or Associate Judge who is physically or mentally unable to perform his or her duties.

(f) The concurrence of four three members of the Commission shall be necessary for a decision. The decision of the Commission shall be final.

(g) The Commission shall adopt comprehensive rules to ensure that governing its procedures are fair and appropriate. These rules and any amendments shall be public and filed with the Secretary of State at least 30 days before becoming effective.

If a member who is a Circuit Judge is the subject of a proceeding, then an alternate Circuit Judge shall replace the subject Circuit Judge. If a Circuit Judge who is not a member is the subject of a proceeding and a Circuit Judge from the same Judicial District is a member, then an alternate Circuit Judge shall replace that member.

If a member of the Commission is disqualified under this Section with respect to any proceeding, that member shall be replaced by an alternate on a rotating basis in a manner provided by rule of the Commission. The alternate shall act as member of the Commission with respect to that proceeding only.

(i) The Commission and shall have power to issue subpoenas.

Navy program offers students hands-on fun

Youth groups can tour Naval Training Center (NTC), Great Lakes to catch a glimpse of Navy training and to learn about life at sea. Each tour lasts about two hours and visits five training sites. Students will visit a shop simulator, climb into the cockpit of a Navy fighter jet and learn about the propulsion system of a Navy guided missile cruiser.

Your first stop will be to the Navy's only Recruit Training Command where you will learn how recruits are taught dedication, teamwork and endurance in a program called "Battle Stations."

Next, is a visit to the Confidence Course. This maritime obstacle course challenges recruits physically and familiarizes them with tasks and equipment they will use later in the fleet.

For the remainder of the tour, you will visit Service School Command where over 70 percent of the Navy's shipboard training is conducted.

Your group will visit the Seaman Apprenticeship Training Division and board the USS Whitehat to experience the fundamentals of seamanship, watchstanding and shipboard navigation.

Your next stop will be the Airman

Apprenticeship Training Division. Here you can climb into the cockpit of a Navy A-7 Corsair attack jet while learning what it takes to fly off the deck of an aircraft carrier.

Finally, you will visit the engineering room of a Navy Aegis guided missile cruiser, complete with ladders, hatches and two gas turbine powerplants and experience the mechanical workings of the Navy's most advanced surface warship.

To schedule a tour of NTC, Great Lakes, telephone the public affairs office at (847) 688-2201 and ask for Chief Petty Officer Paul Engstrom.

Enough already

No, Congress should not have released the videotaped Grand Jury testimony of Clinton's. This was a highly unusual circumstance that the testimony was even taped. I think it was unethical for it to be released. A Grand Jury testimony is supposed to be private. I don't care if he's the President or not. What did it prove? Nothing. Now they're talking about releasing Monica Lewinsky's transcripts. Come on, people, you all complain about too much sex on television and in the media, and your own government is pushing this stuff down your throat (pardon the pun). The Starr Report was one thing, but enough is enough already. Everyone knows the intimacies of their relationship in fine detail, so I say no to any more information being released. Let Clinton get on with the business of running the country.

You are heroes

I wanted to take time to thank the firefighters, the police and the families who were involved in the Lynwood Apartment fire. These people are heroes. They put their lives on the line to save ours, not just this fire, but every day. No one perished in this fire and if any one of those people chose another walk of life, this might not be true. Thank you for all you do and thank your families for sharing you with us.

Clinton's a dirtbag

This is in regard to "Clinton Shouldn't Resign." What do you mean he shouldn't resign? He's a dirtbag and a disgrace to the United States. They court-martialed a Sergeant Major of the Army for sexual harassment and colonels and generals, too. This guy's the commander in chief, come on. The guy's a dirtbag. He doesn't belong in office. Anybody associated with the guy is dead. Everybody who has anything bad on this guy is dead. Why don't they investigate that instead of Monica Lewinsky? Let's get him out of here!

Ripped off

The Tollway Authorities are ripping off the people in tolls. What should be an expressway highway is now an expressway parking lot because it takes longer to get through the toll booths. This causes more accidents and more pollution since these cars are idling. We were lied to and I call these people political crooks.

Floridian is mistaken

For "Northerners are Rude," you are mistaken. We people up here in northern Lake County are very nice people. We help people, take them shopping and to the doctor. We are very courteous. If you go to stores in Mundelein, you'll find really nice people. They help you and they help senior citizens. Mundelein is very helpful and the police department is very nice and helpful. So is Grayslake, Gurnee, and Round Lake Beach, etc. You can't talk. I know you say you're from Florida. I've been there several times and the people there are afraid to talk to you and they're all after the almighty buck. I think you're wrong. If you don't like our town you shouldn't come back.

This is in reference to Oct. 2's message, "Clinton Should Resign" from Gurnee. Boy, are you living in a dream world. You probably believe there's a budget surplus. If they return what's been taken from the Social Security Fund and put in the General Fund, we'd have a deficit with a capital D. Just because it's being done doesn't make it right. Our youth should be able to look up to the President and respect him as a man, a leader, and a family man. The entire world is laughing at us now. The law is the same for every person in this country and he believed he was above the law. You say the economy is great, then what about record bankruptcies, and why is credit card debt at an all-time high? And the jobs Clinton takes credit for, are they middle class jobs or McDonald's burger-flipping jobs? Haven't you heard the Stock Market is crashing? And listen, there's more coming from Starr, stay tuned!

Drive safely

All this garbage about Ryan on the driver's license deal, I think people should start looking into the organizations that sponsor transportation like school districts. It's not the driver's licenses, it's the drivers themselves who aren't keeping up with safety. I don't think the man should be accused of killing people. It's the other people you've got out there driving, breaking state laws, and police not doing anything about it.

Painless Passing: One way to deal with problems

I have a theory about problems. I believe if you attempt to do anything constructive, you position yourself to create problems. Many small-business owners who set out to conquer the marketplace, find themselves awash in problems.

Recently, our country's leader reminded me of an artful and creative way of dealing with problems. It's called the "Painless Pass." I've enjoyed watching this human dynamic in meetings for years. Many group discussions become deliberate attempts to pass problems from one person to another.

Some of the participants in this game become so skilled that other members of the group leave the meetings with problems they didn't know they had. The problem-passing practitioners have some cunning strategies to employ. Here are a few I've seen that would win White House approval.

Problem Dodging Devices

- First, deflect the problem into other areas. This will prove that the problem is widespread and therefore of little concern in this particular situation. This is the old "everybody is doing it" or "everyone else has the same problem" ploy.

- Next, use the "let's approach this problem cautiously" device. If you convince others that to proceed too rapidly might prove disastrous, you can often avoid getting started altogether. No one wants to move prematurely, so others will commend you for your wisdom and insight.

- You can pass many problems by stating to the group that you aren't sure of the "best" solution. Usually, this lets you out of having any solution at all.

- You can maintain the status quo by proposing very minor improvements. Often, others will jump into the game at this point by adding inconsequential changes of their own. For example, a building safety committee found an outside stairway with rotted and weakened steps. They agreed to repaint the "Watch Your Step" signs.

- One of the most often utilized problem-passing plans is to simply appoint a committee. Had God appointed a committee, the earth might still be without form, and void.

- Avoid letting others dissect a problem into smaller, solvable segments. Forcefully, remind all that will listen that you can't solve the problem if you ignore any aspect to concentrate on another aspect.

- Another great device is to act embarrassed when the problem is mentioned. Hint that any discussion is in bad taste, too basic to warrant concern of this mature group or that someone might misinterpret your motives.

- When an action proposal is submitted, immediately suggest a direct opposite and then concede that perhaps the "middle ground" (no change whatsoever) is the wisest course of action. You'll be praised for your insight.

- When backed into a corner, say something no member of the group can understand. For example, "We must consider both the endogenous and exogenous contributor elements in order to circumvent pe-

L & M Services help NAC begin 'Adopt a Home' program

Larry Smith, Martin Bachler, and Nancy McKenna of L & M Services, a new home maintenance business in Zion, have become the first members of Northpointe Achievement Center's "Adopt a Home" program.

Many of the clients at Northpointe live in CILA homes (Community Integrated Living Arrangements). These homes (located in Zion, Beach Park and Wildwood) need repairs that the clients are not able to repair themselves. The "Adopt a Home" program is looking for businesses and individuals to adopt the CILA homes by donating their time and effort to make these repairs. NAC provides all supplies, although donations of materials are also appreciated.

The needed repairs include painting, drywall patching, some electrical and plumbing work, tiling, carpeting, replacing screws and other items. Most of the homes could have the needed repairs finished in a matter of a couple of hours. This small amount of time would mean a great deal to the people living in these houses they proudly call home.

Smith, co-owner of L & M Services said, "We are a new company starting out, and while we could be out trying to find the highest paying jobs, doing something to help someone else is just as rewarding as any monetary compensation."

This program assists local businesses in building community relations, benefits Northpointe Achievement Center, the people living in the CILA homes and the community.

Companies and employees gain the satisfaction and recognition of doing something good for others. The city of Zion has worked hard this summer to "clean up" the town, and these projects fit right in by helping to build the community's status.

"These homes are something to be proud of," Martin from L & M Services said, "and with the work Northpointe does, I can't think of a better place for us to lend a helping hand."

NAC is a private, not-for-profit vocational and residential rehabilitation center, whose mission is to help men and women with disabilities become as independent as possible. NAC is located at 3441 Sheridan Road in Zion. Call 872-1700 for more information.

L & M Services, an all service maintenance company, can be contacted at 746-0953.

Round Lake District 116 Board recognizes donations

The board of Education of Round Lake Unit district 116 recently honored two local entities for donations they gave to benefit district students.

Recognized at the September regular board meetings were the Round Lake Chamber of Commerce president Jordan Primak and Leonard Johansson of LCJ Builders in Round Lake. Both the Chamber and Johansson contributed $500 to the schools. Money from the Chamber will help fund a trip to France planned for next spring by the Round Lake High School French Club, and Johansson's contribution will purchase computer software for the high school.

"Our District is striving to provide opportunities for our students that students in other school districts enjoy—and with help from community members such as yourselves, our goal is becoming a reality," said Superintendent Dr. Mary L. Davis to the benefactors.

For more information contact Superintendent Davis at the District 116 office, (847) 546-5522.

TAYLOR: Dealing with problems by passing them along riphrastic and circumlocutive solutions." Most folks will simply nod in agreement rather than admit they don't have a clue.

• Finally, find general objectives to which all can agree, but which have no bearing on the current situation. For example, when discussing the problem of too many long meetings, respond this way: "Do we agree that time is the critical issue here?" As everyone nods in agreement, continue with, "Let's bring in a time-management consultant. Everyone bring three names to tomorrow's meeting."

The above methods will work every time if your goal is to duck a problem or pass it to someone else. However, if your goal is to actually solve problems, do just the opposite of the 10 methods mentioned above. You'll find problem solvers are in much greater demand than problem passers.

READERS GUIDE TO Lakeland Newspapers

Answers to the most frequently asked questions about how the newspaper operates, how to reach us about a story, how to write a letter to the editor, and how to access our web site.

Q. What information can I submit to be published?

A. Lakeland Newspapers encourages readers to submit stories and story ideas through NEWS RELEASES for the following: activities of service organizations, news of awards and achievements, programs open to the public, entertainment events, special church services and religious programs open to the public, and activities and services of interest to retirees.

Q. How should I prepare a news release?

A. Information of all types of news items should be submitted as a written news release to the appropriate department. Most editors cannot take information over the phone because of time constraints. News releases insure accuracy and save time.

The two most important points to remember are (1) to include all basic information in the first paragraph and (2) to list the name, and day and evening phone numbers of someone who may be contacted for additional information or clarification. News releases should be typed, double-spaced, on one side of an 8 1/2" by 11" sheet of paper and presented with the most important facts listed first. Be sure to double-check the spelling of all names, addresses and other facts. Avoid the need to publish phone numbers if possible.

Q. How can I get an announcement published?

A. Lakeland Newspapers provides special forms for weddings, engagements and anniversaries. You may also arrange to have one of these forms mailed to your home by calling Lakeland Publishers at (847) 223-8161. Birth announcement forms are available in all local hospitals.

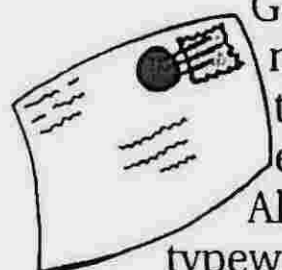

Q. How do I submit a news release or announcement?

A. News releases and completed engagement, wedding, anniversary and birth forms may be left with the receptionist at the front desk or mailed to the appropriate department at: Lakeland Newspapers, 30 S. Whitney St., Grayslake, IL. 60030. News releases also may be submitted by e-mail at edit@lnd.com.

Q. How do I get a letter to the editor in Lakeland Newspapers?

A. Lakeland Newspapers welcomes letters to the editor. Please send letters to "Letters to the Editor," Lakeland Newspapers, 30 S. Whitney St., Grayslake, IL 60030. You may e-mail your "Letter to the Editor" to edit@lnd.com.

All letters published must be typewritten, double-spaced and limited to 250 words. Letters must be signed and must include the writer's address and telephone number in case it is necessary to contact the author for information or clarification. "Name Withheld" letters will not be published. Priority is given to letters offering fresh perspectives and to letters that conform to length and format expectations. Lakeland Newspapers also does not routinely publish "thank you" letters from one organization or individual to another, but may carry such a message if the author is unable to contact the benefactor in any other way. Letters are subject to editing.

Q. How can I get multiple copies of Lakeland Newspapers for classroom use?

A. Call circulation for delivery at 740-4035. Members of the editorial department will give tours of Lakeland Newspapers facility to students. Members of Lakeland Newspapers will visit classrooms on request. Call for available times.

Q. What is Lipservice?

A. Lipservice is a phone-in column presented as a feature of Lakeland Newspapers. We reserve the right to edit copy or to refrain from printing a message. Call in at (847) 223-8073, fax in at (847) 223-8810, or e-mail at lipservice@lnd.com and leave your message 24-hours a day. Callers must leave their name, phone number and village name. Names and phone numbers will not be printed; however, callers may be called for verification.

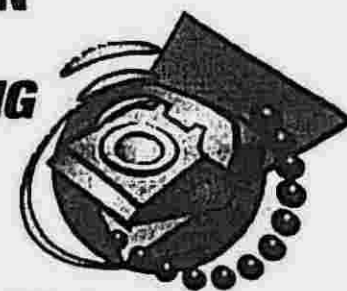

Q. How can I buy back issues?

A. Back issues are available if less than one year old. Mail orders must be paid in advance. For ordering procedure and cost, please call (847) 223-8161. Microfiche and microfilm of papers older than one year are available at most area public libraries.

Q. How can I subscribe to Lakeland Newspapers?

A. Lakeland Newspapers offers home delivery and mail subscriptions. For rates, call (847) 740-4035.

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Q: I have been actively seeking a new position after 18 years with the same employer. I left for reasons that I felt were justified. The person that I reported to for the past 7 years was a verbally abusive individual, who I believe made it his job to make me miserable. Each day was a new experience to find out what type of mood he would come to work in. That mood would indicate what type of abuse I was in for. Referring to a mistake I would make, would result in his referring to me as being "stupid," "ignorant," or just plain "dumb." I know you will say that I have put up with that for way too long, but I did finally walk off the job 2 months ago. I realize now that walking off the job was not a financially sound decision, but the day I did it, I had decided that I put up with his abuse long enough. Here I am 2 months later not only unemployed, but this company is fighting my unemployment all the way. I have been to many interviews in the salary range for which I left the company, only to find I have been turned away by all. I finally got up the guts to ask the Human Resource person at the last interview if she could give me any indication as to why I was not selected for the position. As kind as she was, she was limited by what she could say. I did find it out in a round about way from her that I was the top candidate for the position until it came down to the references. She said that their records indicated that the company gave me an unfavorable reference based upon excessive absenteeism and then job abandonment. I have very few references for which I may use since I was employed for 18 years. I feel that this is what is hindering my employment. What do you suggest I do. Should I contact a lawyer and fight this on the grounds of abuse... or move on as my friend has told me to do? Money and time are both running out.

Please respond, G.P. - Lake Villa

A: I don't know your situation other than what you have written, but my first guess would be, that while you were employed for 18 years with this company, and the last seven with this alleged abusive individual, that perhaps their Human Resources department is totally unaware of any complaints by you. I cannot imagine any company in this day and age, not responding to a problem of this caliber. If in fact you never brought it up and stated your complaints to someone over your boss's head, then it sure does make it look as though you abandoned your job as you said they seem to be indicating in the references given out on you.

I don't believe I would invest the money at this time in legal support, unless you are blessed with some free legal counsel. Being unemployed and in monetary crunch as you have indicated, I would possibly during the course of an interview come clean with the exact situation that led up to your being fired up. There are companies out there who far more appreciate the truth instead of finding out through your former employer. And allow me to reiterate that the person giving out the reference on you, most likely if I am correct... has NO indication of any abuse in your file if you in fact have never gone to them with it. If I am wrong... and if you have... well then... I think your friend might have the right answer for you. Good luck!

DANYELLE (407-42)

Tri-plexes are becoming extremely popular with landlords as the cost of construction is less expensive. It also makes sense that there would be extra money with one more residence and would provide more housing. The Danyelle (407-42) has the advantage over a number of tri-plex plans in that each of these units has a single car garage on the front.

The two outside units each have 922 square feet of living space. There are two bedrooms, one of which is the master bedroom. It has a large walk-in closet and its own private sink and toilet. A pocket door separates the main bathroom with the tub from the master bath.

The living room and the dining room run lengthwise of the modular and can be used as two rooms or incorporated into one great room. Because these units are only two bedrooms it provides a larger area for use as a living/dining room. It also provides an area off the kitchen for each unit to have its own washer and dryer.

The kitchen has a good amount of counter and cabinet space. There is a walkway completely through the kitchen area into the utility and on into the garage. This makes unloading groceries an easier and drier task. The utility room contains more cabinets and a long folding table along with a water heater for this unit.

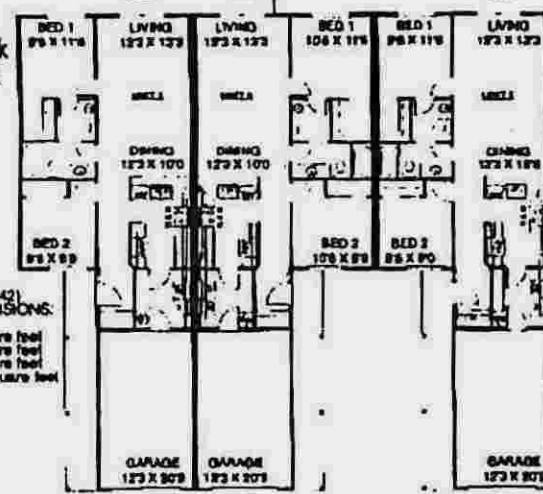

The middle unit is slightly larger than the outer two with 958 square feet. The two bedrooms and the bathrooms are enlarged to provide more space. This unit is laid out opposite of the two outer units. The living/dining room area is on the left with the bedrooms on the right. With this arrangement, it provides an open courtyard effect between the two units that are facing each other.

The two units on the right have the bedrooms back to back with a sound board between. The middle and left units have a shared living/dining room wall which also has been designed with sound board.

These units are ideal for a young couple starting out with only one child or with no children. The units are the size of a small home and have all the amenities that an individual home would have.

For a study kit of the Danyelle (407-42LP60) send $14.95, to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 (Specify plan name & number for kit).

For a collection of plan books, send $20.00, or save by ordering the kit and collection together for $29.95, or call 1-800-562-1151.

HOPI

Hopi is a young fellow, only about 7-8 months old. He was no longer wanted by his original household and reportedly a request was going to be made to have local authorities put him down because of that! A good samaritan interceded for Hopi and he came to the Assisi Animal Foundation where he's been loving, quick to learn and a source of amusement with his energy and youthful playfulness.

As a young dog, a mix Collie and Shepherd, he needs someone at home to oversee him and set good habits. He has the potential to become a perfect family companion and is ready for a good home with all his shots, and just neutered.

For information on Hopi or other quality pets ready for loving homes, please call The Assisi Animal Foundation at 815-455-9411.

CORKY

Corky is a purebred American Eskimo who is guaranteed to melt the coldest heart!

He's still a very young dog...under one year of age...whose original family tearfully gave him up because their schedules demanded more time away from home and less for this loving pooch!

American Eskimos are small dogs...they have gorgeous fluffy white coats and loving dispositions. Corky is handsome in stunning white, and extremely affectionate. He has fine house habits, loves to play and is a little charmer! He is a fine "size" for a condo or apartment and is a fine personality for anywhere.

For more information on Corky or other pets please call the award winning
